10-Cent Gas Hike On Way?

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Elimination of the federal oil subsidy as part of federal spending curbs will boost the cost of gasoline 10 cents a gallon, according to the CBC.

The increase, which will push the cost of a gallon of regular gas to the 85-cent price range in Victoria will be effective July 1, the report added.

Other factors in the curbs, to be announced by Prime Minister Trudeau in a 6:30 p.m. TV address, will include a one-year moratorium on cost-of-living indexes on old age pensions and family allowances, as well as freeze on salaries of MPs and senior civil servants, the report claimed.

Among government programs to get the axe in the restraints program will be Information Canada, the Company of Young Canadians, Local Initiatives and Opportunities for Youth, according to the CBC.

UNESCO Session Boycott

PARIS (UPI) — Canada and the United States led a 12-nation walkout from a meeting of the UN educational, scientific and cultural organization today to protest a measure equating Zionism with racism.

A spokesman for the Soviet delegation, which joined the Arabs in pushing through the measure, said the meeting of UNESCO experts would go on in spite of the boycott.

The United States, Israel, Australia, Canada, Ireland, Britain, France, West Germany, Denmark, Belgium, Italy and Holland walked out to protest a controversial amendment to a proposed declaration on the world's mass media.

UNESCO delegates voted 36 to 22 Wednesday night for an amendment to "encourage mass media to combat war propaganda, apartheid, and racism."

It referred to a UN resolution describing Zionism as a form of racism. The resolution was referred to in New York Wednesday as an "abomination" by U.S. ambassador to the UN Patrick Moynihan (See Page 2).

Western delegation heads trooped into the conference hall to give Josef Grohman of Czechoslovakia, the conference president, letters explaining the walkout.

Grohman started to read the letters but was immediately cut off by objections from Algeria and Iraq.

Letters To Cost 10-11 Cents

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A bill to increase first-class postal rates to 10 or 11 cents from eight-cents probably will be introduced in the Commons next March, Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey indicated Wednesday.

"I hope to get it in by the end of March if I can," he said in an interview.

Mackasey declined to say exactly what the new rate would be but he repeated that he thought "it might be 10 or 11 cents."

"It would still be probably the lowest-cost mail in the world," considering the vast size of Canada. He cited the 20-cent first-class postal rate in West Germany as an example.

Mackasey said he is in no rush to introduce the bill in the Commons but he repeated that rates should increase once the post office has recovered its efficiency after the recent strike.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver the post office has refused to pay $500 advances to some postal workers before Christmas because they haven't worked enough days to qualify for them, Peter Whitaker, president of the Vancouver local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said Wednesday night.

10% LEVY ABOVE $30,000

High Income Surtax

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald announced today a 10 per cent surtax will be levied for one year on taxable personal incomes above $30,000, effective Jan. 1.

Macdonald made the announcement in the House of Commons at noon Pacific time, five hours before he was scheduled to outline details of the anti-inflation regulations and government spending cuts.

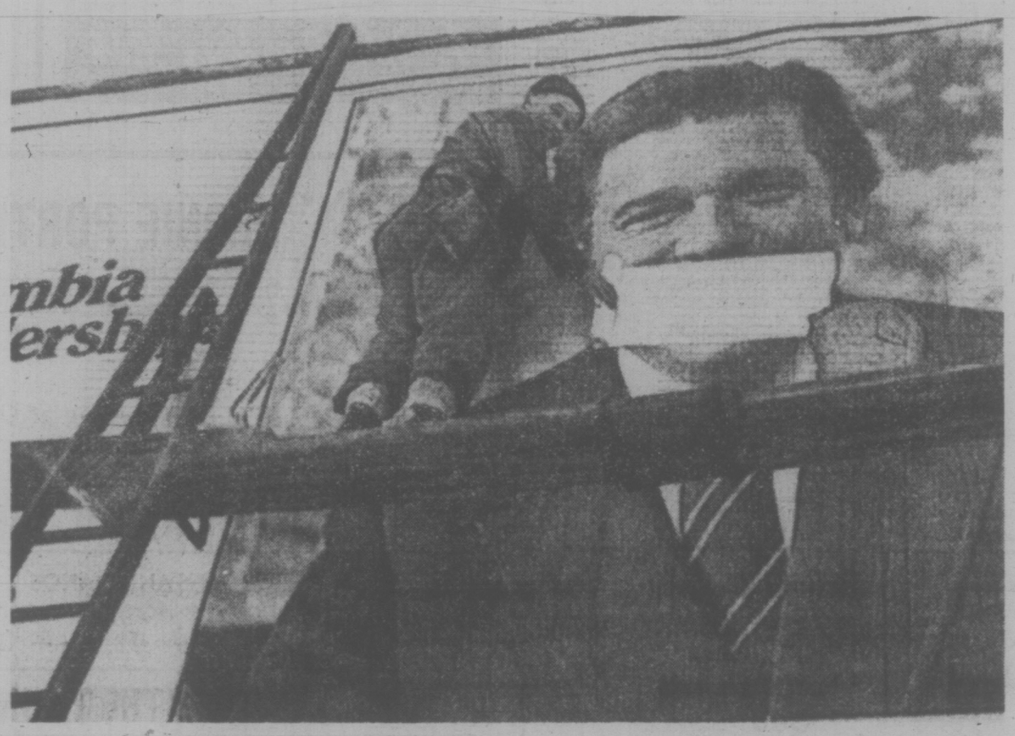
He said the surtax is being introduced reluctantly as a means of reinforcing the government's attack on inflation.

He said it reflects a concern to show all groups in the economy that the anti-inflation program is fair.

The surtax means a married taxpayer with two children under 16 and with income of $45,000 will pay an extra $396 in personal tax.

For a taxpayer earning $60,000 it would amount to an additional $998 tax.

Macdonald estimated the measure will apply to about 170,000 taxpayers and yield about $115 million in additional revenue to the federal treasury.



THE LAST WORD was said by B.C. voters Dec. 11 but fali of New Democratic Party appears manifest here as James Harris begins removal of out-going premier Dave Barrett from Vancouver billboard.

NEWS BRIEFS

Economic Picture Not So Bright

OTTAWA (CP) — An expected improvement in the economy is not as strong as it might be, the Conference Board in Canada said today. Despite encouraging signs in many key areas, some persistent problems raise "disturbing questions" about the length and strength of the recovery, the board said.

Poison Gas Leak

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — Twenty Weyerhaeuser Co. workers were sent to hospital Wednesday after they inhaled poisonous chlorine gas that leaked from a ruptured intake line. None of the injured was in critical condition.

Charges Stayed

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Murder charges against three prisoners involved in the June hostage-taking incident at the B.C. penitentiary were stayed Wednesday at the request of the crown because the three — Dwight Lucas, Andy Bruce and Claire Wilson — are already serving life sentences for murder and attempted murder in other cases.

New Go-Between

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The Dutch government today called in a prison psychiatrist to talk by telephone with Moluccan gunmen holding hostages in the Indonesian consulate after a Moluccan clergyman, Semeul Metiary, indicated he would not continue his own mediation efforts.

Hull Abduction

HULL, Que. (CP) — About 40 area police scoured the Ottawa-Hull region today for the kidnappers of a Hull bank manager's wife who demanded $150,000 ransom for her release.

Truce Threatened

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (UPI) — Heavy gunfire rocked the outskirts of Tripoli today, threatening to demolish a new truce between Moslems and Christians. Leftists seized a ship in the city's harbor and threatened to blow it up but the owners quickly agreed to negotiate the pirates' demands that the Lebanese owners pay their workers overdue salaries.

WHICH ONE is Jack Gregory? ★

HAIR-RAISING IGNORANCE . . .

Chief Jack Gregory is appalled at the lack of general knowledge among applicants to the Victoria police force.

"It's absolutely shocking," he told the Victoria police board meeting Wednesday. "Only 50 per cent knew who the chief constable is!"

"I'm sure they know who Kojak is," countered board chairman, Mayor Peter Pollen.

Gregory said the force recently started a new test on applicants' general knowledge of current affairs.

The force has five vacancies and all applicants must have Grade 12, he said.

Gregory said there are "hundreds of applications on file and it's just unbelievable the number who can just pass the general knowledge test. An applicant who only gets 60 per cent on the test is not the type of man I'm looking for."

Pollen's suggestion that maybe police board members should be given the test went unacknowledged.

$40M in Cuts Needed To Balance Budget

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

The new Social Credit government will likely have to cut budgeted expenditures by $40 million over the next three months if it hopes to balance this year's provincial budget.

So far this fiscal year, the NDP government has trimmed its planned expenditures by $143 million in hopes of balancing the books in the face of declining provincial revenues.

These figures were released today by outgoing Premier Barrett in a "state of the economy" announcement in which he said B.C. has performed far better than most provinces and most jurisdictions in the western world.

Barrett's financial statement, backed up by figures from B.C.'s independent comptroller-general J. W. Minty, was made in an effort to clear up questions raised about the province's financial status during the election campaign.

Barrett's statement reviewed the financial status of B.C.'s Crown corporations but does not estimate the deficit in the Insurance Corporation of B.C., although an official said the NDP would have transferred $150 million from gasoline taxes next year to cover ICBC's accumulated losses.

According to the statement, B.C.'s treasury has fared well during the NDP term in office.

Barrett expressed confidence that the new government will balance the budget, if that is its policy, by continuing the austerity program started by his government.

About $800 million in expenditures are planned for the final three months of this fiscal year, which ends March 31, and thus if revenues continue at current projections

40 AIDES GET AXE

About 40 political assistants to British Columbia's New Democratic Party cabinet ministers were fired today to clear the way for the incoming Social Credit government.

The appointments of the administrative and executive assistants were rescinded by a cabinet order passed today and the dismissals will be effective Jan. 15

Premier Dave Barrett said in keeping with the British parliamentary system, political appointees should be dismissed when a government is defeated, as the NDP was on Dec. 11.

HELP! TRAPPED IN A CAR WASH

GRESHAM, Ore. (UPI) — The brushes went up and down for 45 minutes while deputy sheriff Don Wright shivered inside his trapped car at an automatic auto wash.

A motorized track was moving Wright and his vehicle through brushes and spray without incident Wednesday until a freak gust of wind sprung the facility's exit door with a crash on the hood of the car.

"Soap and water was blasting me from all sides. The brushes were going up and down, scrubbing, scrubbing, scrubbing," Wright said. "You just wouldn't believe it."

"Water was all around me; I couldn't see a thing and it was making the car get pretty cold inside," he said.

He finally used his two-way radio to call for help. A fire district rescue squad brushed away shattered glass and pried away twisted metal from the fallen door to free the deputy.

Gargle Ads All a Lie

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Federal Trade Commission today ordered the makers of Listerine to spend $10 million in advertising to admit they have been lying since 1921 about how the mouthwash will prevent or cure colds and sore throats.

It was the first time the commission has ordered a company to run a corrective advertisement. Previous cases have all involved negotiated settlements where the firms involved agreed to make the "confessions."

"After carefully reviewing the testimony of the experts called by both sides and the studies admitted into evidence . . . we must conclude that the preponderance of the evidence demonstrates that, contrary to advertising claims, the use of Listerine, as directed, will not prevent or cure colds or sore throats or ameliorate cold symptoms," said FTC chairman Lewis Engman in an opinion approved unanimouly by the commission.

The FTC ordered this language to appear in future ads:

"Contrary to prior advertising, Listerine will not prevent colds or sore throats or lessen their severity."

The manufacturer, Warner-Lambert Co. of Morris Plains, N.J., called the order "unfounded" and said it would appeal it to U.S. federal courts, including the supreme court, if need be.

"Listerine advertising is based on the latest scientific evidence relating to colds and does not suggest that Listerine prevents colds," a company spokesman said.

TRUE LOVE'S GIFT CHEAPER

LONDON (Reuter) — The cost of wooing your true love during the 12 days of Christmas is 20 per cent less than last year, says the World Wildlife Fund.

For those who follow the words of the traditional song and send as presents to their lovers a partridge in a pear tree, French hens, colly birds, geese, swans and other live species, the cost would be about $7,860 at today's prices, compared with $9,810 last year.

Parksville Roadblock Nabs 2 City Jailbreakers

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Two more suspected escapers from Wilkinson Road jail were arrested at 11:45 a.m. today when they ran into a roadblock set up by RCMP south of Parksville.

A spokesman for the RCMP in Nanaimo said the men — tentatively identified as Glen John Glowa, 34, and John Edward Wonnacott, 28, are suspected of robbing a 65-year-old man in Chase River, two miles south of Nanaimo, about a half-hour earlier and stealing his car.

The spokesman said Stanley James of Chase River was on a sideroad collecting wood when he was confronted by two men, one with a pellet gun, the other with a high-powered rifle.

The men tied up James with electrical tape and placed him in a car which they left behind.

Police said the vehicle, a green Torino, was reported stolen overnight Tuesday in Victoria after 10 inmates broke out of the jail, the largest escape in the city's history.

James managed to get out of the car and hobbled to the road where a passing motorist spotted him and alerted police.

The RCMP spokesman said the two men in custody have given different names but police are reasonably certain of their true identity from mug shots received.

Glowa and Wonnacott, who are already facing charges of escaping William Head federal prison late last month, were regarded as the most dangerous of the escapers.

Four other inmates remain at large. They are William Harold Mack, 27, Gerald Paul Ritchie, 29, Peter George MacLean, 24, and Lawrence Stanley Shisler, 31.

In developments Wednesday three prison guards were suspended and two escapers nabbed hiding in a house near Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Hal McGillivray, director of provincial corrections for Vancouver Island, said today three guards in the east wing where the breakout took place were suspended immediately pending an inquiry which will be held next Tuesday.

He declined to release names. The disciplinary action is unprecedented in the history of the jail.

Prison guards, who coincidentally met Wednesday night to elect new officers for their union local, have indicated they will not work overtime until the three have been reinstated.

McGillivray said an initial investigation into the breakout has revealed there was a power failure in the east wing at about 10:50 p.m. Officials haven't determined the cause but believe it was purposely done to distract the guards' attention while the inmates escaped. He said it took six to eight minutes to restore power and when the lights came back on half the inmates in one section of the wing were missing.

McGillivray said officers discovered two bars in a window nine feet above the floor in the long rectangular inmates' day room had been

CIA $25M Angola Role Bared

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Revelation that the CIA has already pumped $25 million into arms aid for two of the warring Angola factions and could have another $7 million squirelled away in defence department appropriations caused a Senate uproar Wednesday.

Following a tumultous closed-door session, senators moved toward a vote on cutting off all forms of combat aid to the strife-torn former Portuguese colony. Some of them expressed fears of "another Vietnam."

The body meets again today in another closed-door session to hammer out a solution to the problem.

One suggestion, by a Michigan Republican, that aid be limited to weapons and any sending of U.S. troops be ruled out is believed unacceptable to the Democratic majority.

State Secretary Henry Kissinger, arriving home Wednesday night from meetings in Paris found himself at the centre of the controversy.

He insisted at an airport briefing that six key Congressional committees had been kept posted of U.S. involvement in the African nation and had given the arms aid tacit approval.

Meanwhile, it was reported in South Africa that military rebels had staged an abortive uprising against Mozambique's Marxist government early today.

Loyal forces put down the revolt in street fighting in the capital of Lourenco Marques, Radio South Africa reported.

Scattered fighting raged in the streets of that other former Portuguese colony, well into daylight, the reports said.

South African newspapers have reported growing unrest among the 10 million population since President Samora Machel began a wholesale nationalization of industry and formation of collective farms six months ago when the Portuguese turned over the reins of government to him.

pried open, presumably by using a squeegee handle wrapped in a towel which was found in an enclosure outside. He also said a sheet knotted around a bar hung down the outside prison wall but added he didn't think the escaper had used it as the drop to the ground is only about 15 feet.

Once out, the fugitives scaled a 12 foot wire fence topped with three single-strand barbed wires, he said. They apparently used their coats to protect them from the barbs. They then fled the prison grounds.

Two suspected escapers, Donald William Thomson, 42, and Kenneth Graham Moorhouse, 28, were arrested two hours later at the rear of Spectrum School. They appeared in provincial court Wednesday afternoon charged with escape.

Thomson pleaded guilty and was remanded to Christmas eve for sentencing. Moorhouse requested a week to obtain counsel and was remanded to the same date for election of trial method and plea.

At about 3:50 p.m. Wednesday, Victoria police received a tip that two of the wanted men were hiding in an upstairs suite in a duplex at 1725 Bank.

Staff Sgt. Gordon Bennett said seven officers responded and ringed the house. The two men apparently got wind of what was happening, he added. One went to a window and was about to open it to climb onto the roof when a police officer, gun drawn, suddenly appeared on the outside.

The two submitted without struggle.

William Paul Murray, 27, and Larry Alan Preston, 32, appeared in provincial court this morning, both charged with escape. Murray was remanded to Dec. 24 and Preston to Dec. 23. No pleas were entered.

B.C. Performs Better—Barrett

the Socreds will have to trim their budget by about five per cent.

Socred leader Bill Bennett has pledged to balance the NDP's budget.

In the lengthy statement, Barrett pointed out that each year of the NDP administration the province had a budget surplus and the total cash reserve of the province increased from $98.6 million in 1972 to $143.7 million in 1975.

The NDP government also decreased the province's debt in parity bonds by reducing the number of outstanding bonds from $253.5 million in 1972 to $1415.5 million in 1975.

The assets of B.C.'s Crown corporations increased under the NDP by 49.4 per cent from $3.8 billion to $5.7 billion. The assets of previously existing Crown corporations increased $1.4 billion and the remaining increase in assets was due to new Crown corporations, according to the statement.

Barrett said the perpetual and special funds of the provincial government also increased about 52 per cent to $526.6 million, up from 347.3 million in 1972.

As for this year's budgetary position, Barrett pointed out the federal government will run a deficit of some $4 billion this year and the Ontario Conservative government will probably run a deficit as high as $2 billion.

Declining revenues, mainly because of the slump in the forest industry, will likely mean about a five per cent or $158 million shortfall in projected revenues this year.

With some new financial responsibilities, increasing anticipated expenditures and with the NDP's austerity program already cutting the budget by about $143 million, another $40 million will likely have to be cut if the budget is to balance.

A government spokesman said the NDP administration would have continued to cut expenditures but the new Social Credit government will have to decide whether to cut back based on its own policies and priorities.

He said the government could instead draw down some of the accumulated cash reserve (now standing at $143 million).

The former Social Credit government balanced its budget by using cash reserves three times during its 20-year term in office, said the official, and although the NDP had a budgetary surplus last year, it used some cash reserves to pay for special fund projects.

HOVERCRAFT ROLE GROWS

LONDON (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union are both developing giant hovercraft for military purposes, Jane's Surface Skimmers said in its 1976 edition today.

The U.S. navy is developing ocean-going hovercraft of up to 10,000 tons, Jane's said. The Soviet Union is also developing military hovercraft "substantially larger" than the 200-ton vessels currently in operation, it reported.

A hovercraft, which rides above the water on a cushion of air, has the advantage of being speedier than conventional ships.

Jane's said naval planners were turning to the hovercraft, also known as a surface effect ship, "to regain the edge in speed that has gone to the submarine with the advent of nuclear power."

Test exercises show the hovercraft can play an important role in anti-submarine warfare, especially when used in conjunction with helicopters to protect convoys from underwater attack, the authoritative military reference said.

Anti-submarine helicopters using hovercraft as a base for operations had between 20 and 40 per cent greater range than helicopters based on conventional warships, Jane's said.

A new project at Colquitz junior secondary school has brought some sunshine into the life of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Groves, 4070 Grange, as well as money into the school coffers.

The Goves won first prize — a trip to Hawaii — in the school's first Sunshine Draw, which netted $4,700 for financing of school activities. The money will be used for such things as operating the school's bus, purchased last year, and purchase of sports equipment.

There are about 800 students at the school.

With Christmas yet to come, it seems a little early to be talking baseball, but the NORTHRIDGE COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION notes that help is needed for managing, coaching and umpiring in the approaching season of the Layritz Little League. Interested parents are asked to call Neil Dickson at 479-7584 or Norm Lidstone at 479-6558.

The association newsletter notes that volunteers did a good job last month in cleaning up Colquitz Creek from Mann Avenue to Vanalman.

The project was organized by Ester and Robert Noren of Eastwood Crescent and in a three-hour period three truckloads of debris were hauled away.

The municipality of OAK BAY would like a hand in restoration of the recently acquired historic Tod House.

What's needed are artifacts or information on just what might have been in the house 125 years ago, residence of John Tod, chief trader with the Hudson's Bay Company.

The province and municipality jointly bought the heritage house on Heron Street for $65,000.

How Soon They Forget

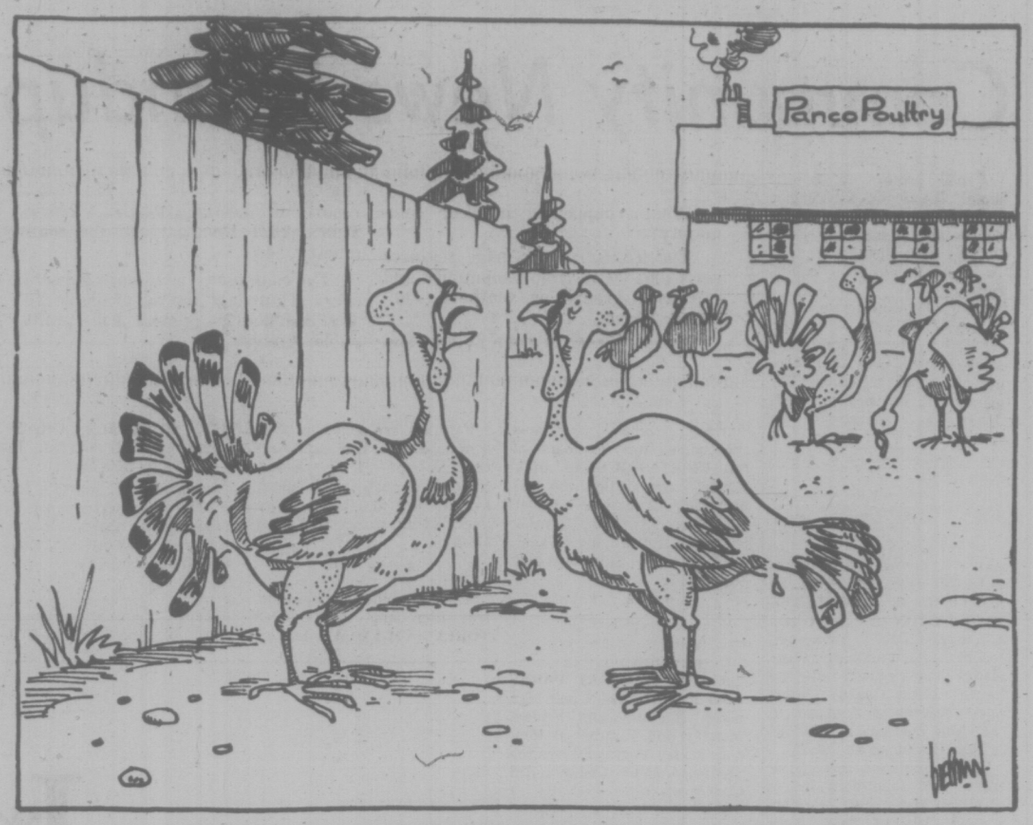
Does anyone here recall Saanich council members stating specifically in last month's municipal election campaign that they favored boosting the salaries of the mayor and aldermen? Does anyone remember Oak Bay councillors promising, before they were acclaimed into office in November, that they would increase their own pay by 33⅓ per cent?

No? For such an important decision, one which sets a symbolic example, surely they must have told someone? Whispered it on the hustings perhaps?

Oak Bay council's action was bad enough — a one-third increase on existing remuneration of $1,800 with strong talk of adding another $600 next year — but the Saanich aldermen who unanimously voted themselves a 12.5 per cent pay raise deserve every epithet in the book. Especially for making the pay raise retroactive by an entire year.

Ald. Joe Bourque, specifically, takes the top award for hypocritical flip-flops. Only months ago (before the election, of course) he was talking tough about a hold-the-line stand against any pay raises for councillors. Now he goes along with 12.5 per cent because it "is in line with the federal government guidelines."

He's wrong on that too. The guidelines allow a maximum of 10 per cent, with an extra two per cent allowed for increased productivity or in special cases. We'll be watching for the expected burst of activity in council chambers in Oak Bay and Saanich, as mayors and aldermen surpass all existing productivity records.



". . . I'm just a little worried about the future with the change in governments . . . do you think we'll lose our jobs? . . ."

Colonialism As An Alternative

Parliamentary democracy, the Queen and the United Nations were venerated by generations of Canadian school children. The first two are still honored but the latter has fallen on hard times because of its anti-Israel resolutions and all kinds of motions to condemn western nations for just about everything. The UN's new shirtiness towards its founding fathers was underlined last week when the general assembly commemorated the adoption of a declaration on decolonization, noting that 44 countries with 70 million people now have independence. Most of these so-called third world countries immediately joined the "club" and began voting against their old masters.

During the laudatory speeches last week, delegates also mentioned that 80 million people in 40 dependent territories are yet to lift the yoke of foreign rule. After the Second World War, colonialism became a bad word, as much in western democracies as it did in the communist east. The UN has worked long and hard on decolonization, giving some powers a kind of regency over developing nations, and at the same time persuading colonial powers to give up territories. For the most part the system has worked well, fostering new nations, without bloodshed.

But things are changing. Too many new nations design a flag, equip an army with expensive weapons, and call it a day. We only have to look to Bangladesh or Angola to see tragic results. And who should turn up helping various Angolan factions? Why the old colonial powers, including a few of the new ones, of course. The game of political hegemony has become more subtle. Let the local boys kill each other as long as we can call the shots back at head office, seems to be the philosophy. The underlying irony is that most of the foundering nations were better off under colonial masters than at present. Are starvation, civil war and death a fair price for a bit of hunting and an annual military parade? It's a lousy question, but one that Angolans should be asking themselves.

JAMES RESTON

Learning and Earning in U.S.

WASHINGTON — the men who are seeking the U.S. presidency are saying very little these days about the condition of the nation or what they propose to do about it, but outside the political realm, there is considerable thought about where the U.S. is and where it's going in the coming election and bicentennial year.

For example, Willard Wirtz, the former secretary of labor, now working with the National Manpower Institute, has completed a careful study of American work and education patterns, and has produced an excellent prospectus for a new community-directed work-study partnership. Some of his main points:

● Despite our long experience with practical education in manual training schools, land-grant universities and adult education classes, American life is still largely "divided into the time traps of youth for education, adulthood for work, and old age for nothing. . . . Learning and earning pass as totally isolated chapters."

Millions Illiterate

● Again, despite our pioneering efforts at mass education, there are now 51 million adults in this country who have had less than the normal 12 years of formal education. Various surveys show that millions of adult Americans (the figures range from three million to 18.5 million) cannot read the report cards their children bring home from school, or the help wanted ads in the newspapers, or medicare applications or the questions on their driver's license tests.

● These two separate worlds of work and education are out of keeping with the present requirements of American life. At the beginning of this century, for example, the waking hours of most adults were completely dominated by the demands of earning a living and raising a family. But now with smaller families, these responsibilities take up about one-third of the waking hours.

● Too much of the time we are educating people for the wrong thing, e.g., producing twice as many teachers in this decade as there will be openings; failing to see work and education as a continuing life combination, and basing critical judgments on inadequate or inaccurate information.

● For example, we measure the gross national product four times a year, but this "is all about quantity and nothing about quality, all about dollars and nothing about values, all about the system and nothing about people."

Wirtz and his colleagues in this study are not suggesting another elaborate or expensive federal scheme. They would begin with a pilot plan. This would establish in 25 cities and rural areas community education-work councils, through which school officials, employers, members of labor unions, and members of the public develop and administer education-work programs.

The emphasis would be on local control, thrift and practical career guidance and counseling — at least five hours per year for all high school and college students on the basis of employment possibilities, occupation by occupation.

The report suggests that one option for students might be a year or two of work between the ages of 16 and 20, and proposes that a careful analysis be made of all laws or regulations that now impede the movement from study to work and vice versa.

For example, they would revise the unemployment and insurance laws and regulations to permit and encourage the use of periods of unemployment for training and education. And they would remove all regulations that forbid the use by adults of elementary and secondary public school facilities.

This brief and inadequate summary does no justice to the scope of the Wirtz report, but like Nelson Rockefeller's Critical Choices reports and the recent study of The American Commonwealth by the magazine The Public Interest, it helps dispel the popular illusion that everything is going wrong these days and nothing is being done about it.

One threshold problem is that these studies, involving years of work by concerned citizens, have such a small circulation, and are so widely ignored by press, radio and television. Billions for political rubbish and very little for political and social analysis!

Deeply Skeptical

It may mark a trend, however, that these private studies not only start modestly but propose modest experimental remedies close to the people themselves.

"The American people today," the Wirtz report says, "are deeply skeptical about any grandiose representation. They have been oversold for too many years on too many grand initiatives . . . the first demand on policy today is that it be totally credible. And the second demand is that it be fiscally responsible."

No claim is made in this report for great originality, and all credit is given to other pioneers. Rather the claim is for practicality, and especially for local responsibility in helping correct the imbalance of work and study that now inhibits the progress of all communities.

W. A. WILSON

Basic Economic Changes

OTTAWA — At least two fundamental, partially related changes have been occurring very rapidly in the structure of our economy and society in the last decade or so.

One has been the dramatic and sudden increase in the portion of total resources accounted for by spending in the public sector. The other is the steady rise in the proportion of the labor force working in service occupations, rather than those that in a direct sense are wealth-producing.

Just under 40 per cent of Canada's gross national product is absorbed by government spending at all levels, much of it, however, in the form of transfer payments which quickly return to individuals either as direct payments or through a different level of government.

It has been estimated that by the end of this decade about two out of three workers of all sorts will be performing services rather than making or growing things. The connection between the two trends is partial but, where it exists, important.

Still a Conundrum

The nature of government requires making choices — that is what it is all about. The process becomes severely hampered when economic constraints deny a government freedom of choice and impose rigidity in the place of the necessary flexibility. I have been arguing that the first priority during a period of renewed economic growth, when that comes, should be the recovery of flexibity in government and that this is possible, at the senior levels, because public appetites for their services are largely created by governments themselves.

If it is true in a general way that the public does not in fact place heavy, positive demands on the senior governments, that is not at all true in the case of the income demands placed on them by their own employees or by service occupations depending upon them. We are probably much closer to re-establishing some flexibility in government than we are to learning how to manage service-occupation incomes in the public sector. The first is at least a goal while the second is still largely a conundrum.

Part of the problem is that we are far from any understanding of an appropriate level of income in either the public sector or the service occupations, such as medicine, which are financed through it. The resources of an industry or a business place some ultimate limits on the incomes that can be drawn from it, although there may and often are bitter struggles over the ways in which the total is to be shared. No such restraint operates in the public sector although it does, of course, on service incomes in the private sector.

A sort of consensus can emerge in goods-producing occupations, through an interplay of the ultimate limits of the enterprises involved and the owner of the various groups trying to draw money from it. In the public sector, however, we are at the stage where the only factors in play are the strengths of the participants. This leads to what has come to be called comparative wage bargaining between groups — teachers trying to keep ahead of nurses and so on — and to distortions between public and private sectors.

Medicare, for instance, has produced a result that few foresaw when it was being introduced a few years ago. Until then, necessity imposed some relationship between doctors' fee schedules and the amount ordinary patients could pay. Medical services were, to an unattractive degree, rationed by money and if doctors charged too much for their services the portion of their bills remaining unpaid went up. In a broad way, there was a relationship between the fee schedules and middle class incomes.

Today this relationship has been lost. In Ontario, doctors are currently asking a 51 per cent increase in their net incomes, a demand their professional associations would have thought impractical 10 years ago, even though the Ontario fee schedules have remained unchanged for too long, given the inflation rate. Now, however, doctors are not looking at average middle class incomes but at total government resources. The wider availability of medical care is one of the most important social reforms the post-war period has brought in Canada but we have not discovered how to replace an earlier economic discipline.

In some communities there has been an historic relationship between the wages of papermakers and of policemen and it has been noted that in these towns high police pay has become a factor in the current pulp and paper disputes. This is the sort of distortion that can be produced.

Postmaster-general Bryce Mackasey has had obvious reason to reflect on the sort of change that is taking place and he has suggested that the recent postal strike may have involved the beginning of one new trend. In the past, the public has generally been impatient of public service strikes and has demanded a quick end to them. This usually takes the form of pressure to buy a settlement through abnormally high wage concessions or of demands that the government should pass a law ending the strike. The latter is the usual way in which railway strikes have been settled in Canada.

Mackasey has drawn attention to the fact that neither of these usual developments occurred in the case of the postal strike. A strong public consensus formed and it remained largely intact throughout the strike. It was clear that the public as a whole thought the offer was fair and that the government should let the strike run until it was accepted. Demands for a legislated settlement existed but were never overwhelming.

Quick Understanding

This has led the postmaster-general to speculate that public opinion may gradually become a more sophisticated factor in public service strikes than in the past, taking a position that will inevitably influence both sides.

"It may be the beginning of a new trend," he observed of the role of public opinion in the postal strike. "In Britain, the public sided with the miners in the last days of the Heath government although earlier public opinion had been so strong that it ended an electrical strike."

Mackasey has speculated that a quick public understanding of the issues involved was common to all three of these disputes. If a new trend is emerging, the element in private sector disputes missing in the public sector may be replaced by this new factor. If the role of public opinion in the postal strike is an isolated development, the fundamental problem will remain. It is, in the end, more likely to be dealt with by some process of social adaptation than by government decision or action. There is no reason for this. The benefits that can be drawn from any society in the end depend upon the wealth produced within it, no matter what form the society takes. When pressures become too strong, societies begin to adapt.

Free Enterprise

I am profoundly relieved and grateful that sanity has prevailed and we have thrown the socialist government out of office. At the same time I feel somewhat uneasy and I now can say after the election what I felt would be inadvisable before the election.

I have read about and observed socialism for 57 years. As a young boy I had an ardent socialist as a friend. For 50 of the 57 years I have been an opponent of socialism. To me, it has two fatal flaws. It does not understand that production comes before distribution and that the human spirit, the individual values must have freedom before all else. Man does not live by bread alone. Socialism believes the state, or control from the top, is necessary because the individual does not know what is best for himself. This is a mistake. Man was conditioned from the cave to survive by his own efforts and stubbornly resists the suppression of his freedoms.

Social Credit under W. A. C. Bennett provided a supplement to the national old age pension. The new Social Credit government must, from its inception, strive to educate business to the new sharing which must be given it's due priority. The alternative to an enlightened free enterprise system is the fatal disease of socialism. — M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra Street.

Scores of Promises

The B.C. election has come and gone.

The forces of big business, "the wealthy Socred party with their donations from foreign and rich local sources and their lavish advertisement campaign, the federal Conservatives and other so-called concerned citizens groups which included right-extremist groups like the John Birchers, all conspired to scare the provincial Liberals and Conservatives away from voting for their own party and voting for the Socreds instead.

I am amazed that the people of B.C. could be so easily intimidated or brain washed!

This is democracy?

The Socreds are now bound by scores of promises to continue and enrich most of the good policies and programs that the NDP put in place. Let us see if they keep their word. — B.C. Voter.

Socred Victory

Shortly before he died this year, Arnold Toynbee said that the present downfall of civilized man was attributable to the free enterprise system which made greed respectable.

The victory of the Social Credit party on Dec. 11 was not a "victory for the people" — Social Credit philosophy and the well-being of the general populace being a contradiction in terms — but for unenlightened self-interest. It was a vote of the "haves" against the "have-nots," the "I'm-all-right-jackers" against, if you like, the do-gooders. Landlords vote Social Credit and tenants vote NDP, which should tell us something.

It would seem that some people have short memories. Social Credit is not good government unless your "thing" is the questionable security of a large bank account, sinking another mine shaft, chopping more of our trees or building another dam for power to sell to the Americans.

It is most important to vote and remember that the percentage of the popular vote gained by the NDP was the same as that which swept them to office in 1972.

A lot of people do not want Mr. Bennett as premier. He will have to be much more cautious than his father was.

Given enough rope — and a majority in the legislature should be quite sufficient — they will certainly hang themselves. What is so very worrisome is the spectre of all the damage they could do in the meantime, to both people and the land.

Money Troubles

Money was the issue. Once again money will speak, command and corrupt. Is it the only way? Must we be slaves to money and people with it?

Let's look to the future for a perfect society, and work towards it. — Brock Thompson, 8-845 Princess Street.

Goodbye Peter, It's Been Fun

He's Dominated Civic Stage With Swashbuckling Gusto

By PAUL MOSS

Headline grabber extraordinary, civic leader with a unique style, tilter at windmills, scourge of the business community, self-appointed guardian of morality, champion of consumerism — Mayor Peter Pollen has played these and other roles with swashbuckling gusto for the past four years.

But now it's exit Pollen; enter Mike Young; the show must go on.

While he was the unchallenged star on the local municipal stage he drew nearly as many bad notices as rave reviews. For every two applauding fans there was at least one vocal critic ready to hurl a rotten egg at those exquisitely tailored suits.

More time, though, will have to elapse before his achievements (and they were many) can be measured against his faults and his failures, because the lingering echoes of his flamboyant bravura tend to muffle the off-key notes.

Meanwhile, here is nothing more profound than an assortment of impressions by a reporter who has watched and recorded this pilgrim's progress for most of his two terms as mayor.

As much as anything they're impressions of Pollen the man: a complex, highly volatile and fascinating personality.

Fools and Others Have Felt Sting Of Viperish Tongue

Colonist series, The Pollen Years. "My God, it's ludicrous to use a phrase like that, as if I was John F. Kennedy or someone."

But his true feelings on that occasion were probably quite the opposite, for the inescapable fact about Pollen is that he has a substantial ego, and egos need sustenance in the form of public recognition.

Herein, too, lies the explanation for the character trait — or flaw, as many would say — which made him at one and the same time the most interesting, colorful, controversial and exasperating mayor in the city's history.

He's good, he knows he's good and far from suffering fools gladly, he's quite likely to call them fools in public.

And not just fools, either. Self-seekers, exploiters of the community, obfuscating bureaucrats, polluters — these and others felt the sting of his viperish tongue which at times seemed to have a will of its own, striking out wildly in all directions.

Especially during his first term as mayor, it seemed that almost every other day Pollen was attacking some individual, group or institution. In more cases than not the attacks were justified and they earned him headlines and acclaim far beyond the city's or even B.C.'s boundaries. For here was that rare breed, a politician who actually said what he thought, without equivocation or compromise, and to hell with the consequences.

But too often he went off half-cocked. Either he lacked substantiation for his charges or he succumbed to the temptation to become a dealer in cheap insults.

Then the results were totally unnecessary friction and confrontation, including two threatened lawsuits from which he was forced to back down with public apologies to the individuals concerned.

Such incidents tended to leave a sour aftertaste, to weaken if not seriously damage his credibility and to obscure the list of his very solid achievements and contributions.

If it's axiomatic that times of need and crisis produce their own leader, the man of the moment, few would argue that Pollen was such a man for Victoria.

When he first arrived on the civic scene six years ago as a rookie alderman much of the city's former charm had already been irrevocably ruined.

Highrises (including the incredibly offensive Camosack Manor in Rockland Heights) were infecting the skyline with their architectural acne. Upper Douglas Street, complete with whirling buckets of fried chicken and bunting-strewn used car lots, was a neon-lit disaster beyond redemption. The Inner Harbor was in decay. Inertia ruled supreme at City Hall.

Some attempts at civic improvement had been made — Centennial Square and Bastion Square are two of the more notable examples — but city council's thinking extended little beyond its perennial obsession with expanding the tax base.

Architects' "renderings" (why are they never called sketches?), often complete with fictional foliage and phoney "perspectives," were swallowed whole by naive aldermen.

Little thought was given to the impact of large developments on essential services, traffic patterns, the surrounding neighborhood or the city as a whole.

Slender, Elegant But Seething Volcano Of Energy and Ideas

Into this mess strode a slender, elegant man of 42, a political science graduate from the University of Toronto, hot-shot car dealer, seething mini-volcano of energy and ideas.

He asked questions, argued with officials, attacked sacred cows, spouted statistics, demanded facts and yet more facts. In short, he made himself a bit of a nuisance at City Hall. And through the news media, which recognized a source of stories when they saw one, he quickly impinged himself on the public consciousness.

This was the time, remember, when the reaction against the "growth is good" philosophy cherished by business-dominated councils was gaining momentum across Canada, as older neighborhoods were steadily destroyed, highrises mushroomed and freeways carved up once attractive countryside.

Citizen groups were springing up to challenge the developers who had had such an easy ride for so long. And often they found they could fight City Hall and win.

Pollen, who had read and could quote from Jane Jacobs, Lewis Mumford, Rachel Carson and almost everyone else who has written about the problems of urban growth and the environment, rode this wave like a surfer.

He translated the broader issues into strictly local concerns — concentrating on the Inner Harbor and the infamous Reid Centre — and after a stormy two years as an alderman coasted to victory in the mayoralty election of December, 1971.

Probably more than anything else, with the possible exception of the Bay Village highrise project in James Bay which he also fought tooth and nail, the Reid Centre epitomized the kind of Victorian future which Pollen refused to contemplate.

His argument, repeated so often it became a litany, was that other North American cities had screwed themselves up and sacrificed their souls on the altar of the "Coca Cola-Hershey Bar culture." But Victoria still had a chance to remain a city for people, rather than a city for the Chamber of Commerce.

Lest he should ever forget what his foe looked like, he displayed prominently on the office wall behind his desk a large color picture of the highrise canyons of Vancouver's West End.

Perhaps Pollen's major achievement during his first mayoralty term was that he was able to imprint this personal credo on a council which still included some aldermen of the old school, men who found it easier to calculate the tax revenue potential of a large building than assess its multi-dimensional impact on the surrounding area.

The result was that in two years the city made more real progress in controlling development than it had in decades previously.

Height and density restrictions were imposed on all new development (a policy since copied by several other cities), tough zoning controls placed on gas station operations, a three-year phasing out period established for billboards and roof signs ... to cite a few of the more prominent milestones.

Such is the strength of Pollen's personality, however, that it's a temptation for some observers to record these as his own reactions, whereas of course the decisions were made by a nine member council.

In fairness, it should be noted that the abilities and particular talents of the aldermen he led probably helped him appear better than he was.

There were, for example, the sheer hard work and military thoroughness of Alf Hood; the lawyer's careful approach to zoning and planning matters by Mike Young; and the enthusiasm and imagination of Sam Bawlf, whose own efforts in restoring heritage buildings undoubtedly acted as a catalyst for the rejuvenation of the Old Town area.

But Pollen was the Pied Piper and the others generally skipped along to his tune.

As his special style emerged during those two eventful years, 1972 and 1973, it became obvious that he saw the mayor's job as far more comprehensive in scope than merely overlording roads, sewers, taxes and the like. It was up to him, as a community leader in the broadest meaning of the term, to take up arms against all those whose actions directly or indirectly threatened the commonweal.

Thus came the attacks on the "toothless" federal regulatory agencies, the Canadian Transport Commission and the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, on B.C. Telephone, cablevision companies and many others.

He once cheerfully admitted that his investment portfolio included a smattering of shares in several large companies, so that he would be as well-briefed as anyone if the time came when he had to take on such corporate giants.

It's also typical of the man's vision of himself as the local white knight of consumers that he should name his holding company after the enfant terrible of consumerism in the U.S., Ralph Nader. (Unfortunately, Pollen's accountants boobed with the spelling so the firm is called Nadar Holdings.)

Then, too, there was Pollen the cultural leader — organizing civic trips to European cities in the hope that Old World charm might rub off on those who shape this New World town; deploring the "mindless commercialism" of Canadian radio and the "abysmal" quality of Canadian newspapers; whipping up enough interest among Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich to buy the Royal Theatre as a municipal centre for the performing arts.

A voracious reader with catholic tastes and an extraordinary memory, Pollen can quote from the Wall Street Journal as readily as from Rupert Brooke (even though his literary allusions sometimes fall on uncomprending ears).

Often on entering the Tuesday afternoon caucus meeting he would scatter press clippings around the table for aldermen to peruse, and recently he provided each alderman with a copy of the paperback, The True Believer, Eric Hoffer's study of mass movements through the ages. (It would be fascinating to know how many of them have since read it.)

In his conduct of council meetings and in fielding reporters' questions Pollen was invariably articulate, witty and bitingly sarcastic. In the Pollen lexicon of choice insults, entrepreneurs were "rapacious," federal government bureaucrats "faceless" and Chamber of Commerce types "myopic."

As a successful businessman himself he was and remains a complete enigma to the business community he was so fond of attacking for its self-interest and political apathy.

But despite his unpopularity in that quarter, one also detected a sneaking admiration.

When he was seeking re-election in 1973 he was asked at a press conference staged by the Chamber of Commerce what was the single most important lesson he had learned. Quick as a flash and with a straight face he replied: "Humility." The business-suited audience roared with laughter.

Set against his obvious qualities and talents, however, are other character facets less admirable.

He occasionally reveals flashes of intellectual snobbery, as in his disparaging comments about union leaders who are "grade 10 dropouts" and in patronizing references to manual workers as "the lunchbucket guys."

For someone with the public image of a progressive-minded small-l liberal he's also somewhat of a prejudiced reactionary.

After he attended the opening of the first legislative session under the NDP government, he returned to City Hall fuming about black MLA Emery Barnes' "goddam afro haircut and goddam caftan ... an insult to the British parliamentary tradition."

He's a better ideas man than an action man, and in some ways he lacks the tenacity to hammer away at a difficult problem. His distrust of professionals, typified by frequent clashes with Dave Campbell when Campbell was traffic engineer, borders almost on an obsession.

And while he's good at dishing out criticism, he's less so at receiving it. In fact, despite his frequent protestations to the contrary, he's hypersensitive. A press conference comes to mind when Pollen, incensed at a radio reporter's story which suggested he had vacillated on a particular issue, asked the reporter in question if he was "mentally retarded."

Pollen leaves the mayor's chair with many things accomplished, others partly accomplished — it's no secret that he's disappointed with the "half-assed" Government Street Mall — and others still awaiting action.

Not as much has happened on the Inner Harbor scene as he had hoped, but with some justification he blames this on the half-hearted approach of the NDP government.

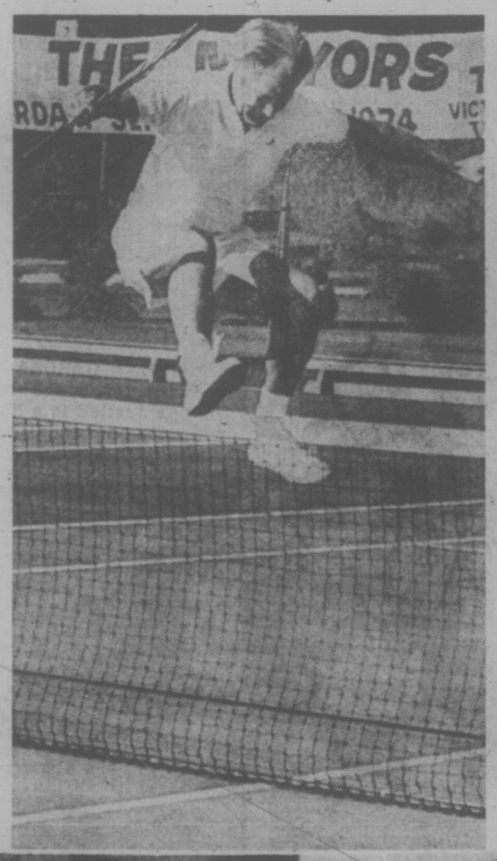
Even his enemies would probably admit that Pollen by and large has been a good mayor. There are many who consider him outstanding.

History will probably show that his most valuable contribution was his ability to make the citizenry look inward on itself and the urban environment it had created; to examine how the good could be enhanced and the bad rooted out.

He articulated as no one had done before many of the feelings residents had always shared about the city and its future.

To the reporters who were so often on the receiving end of his tirades, he will be missed. And not just as a steady source of good copy.

In a world of dull and boring politicians, Peter Pollen was never dull and never boring.



In world of dull politicians he's never been dull

MOVE LIP FUNDS EAST, MP URGES

OTTAWA (CP) — Vancouver Liberal MP Simma Holt's swipe at what she described as "phoney make-work" Local Initiative Program projects drew a sharp reply Wednesday from a New Brunswick Liberal member in the Commons.

Eymard Corbin asked Manpower Minister Robert Andras to shift any LIP funds left over in the "prosperous, rich and affluent ridings of the West Coast" to the Atlantic region, where unemployment is high this winter and people want a chance to work.

Andras replied that unused funds for "this excellent program" — a compliment to LIP on the eve of government budget cuts that may include the program — can be shifted to other ridings.

"Constituencies with high rates of unemployment are not concentrated in the east but are found throughout the country," Mr. Andras added in another flattering comment on LIP which is designed to bring money and jobs to needy areas.

Holt had said Tuesday that "large sums" of LIP money are left over in her riding "because we rejected phoney make-work projects."

She suggested that the LIP money go into general government revenue "for all Canadians."

Time Clamps Will Be Retroactive: Sharp

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Government House leader Mitchell Sharp assured the commons Wednesday that the Trudeau government is firmly committed to the passage of the controversial bill affecting the future of the Canadian editions of Time and Reader's Digest.

He said the date in the bill for the legislation becoming operative is January 1.

Consequently if and when it is passed after the Christmas recess it will be retroactive to the January 1 date.

In the House last week Sharp had listed the bill C-58 as a "must pass" piece of legislation. He told the House it was included in the measures that "must pass" the house before the Christmas recess starts Friday.

But the government has encountered difficulties inside its own caucus with some of the Liberal MPs protesting against the legislation as "unfair."

Several government backbenchers have said publicly they intend to speak against the measure and talk at length on proposed amendments.

Progressive Conservative MPs have said they will put forward half a dozen amendments. They also propose to speak at length on each of the amendments. Some Tory members said "you might describe it as a filibuster."

Faced with such strong opposition and less than a week to go for the Christmas recess the government decided to back down and let the bill stand over until next month for debate.

The word was passed to the MPs Monday and Tuesday that Bill C-58 had been removed from the "must pass" list and would be brought up again when the House returns to work probably on Jan. 26.

Because of the report James McGrath (PC-St. John's East) asked Sharp if Bill C-58 which was originally scheduled to become operative on Jan. 1 1976, would be considered a tax bill "and will become operative as of Jan. 1 regardless of whether or not parliament has dealt with it."

Sharp said: "This is a tax bill and the same principles will apply to it as to any other bill brought forward in this way. The date Jan. 1 is in the bill, and that is the intention of the government.

Quarantine Change Set

OTTAWA (CP) — Pending changes to the Quarantine Act will allow health authorities to hold a person during the incubation period of a disease as well as the period during which it is contagious, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday.

The amendments will be introduced in the next session of Parliament, scheduled to begin sometime after members return from their Christmas recess, he told the Commons.

Lalonde was replying to Dr. P. B. Rynard (PC—Simcoe North) who said lassa fewer might be brought to Canada by athletes participating in the 1976 Olympics.

Marchand Braced for Files Fight

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Jean Marchand, minister without portfolio, said Wednesday he will co-operate with the RCMP but is ready to go to court to prevent them from making "a fishing expedition" through his files.

Marchand was accused in the Commons by Tom Cossitt (PC-Leeds) of seeking to limit RCMP examination of his office files, thus raising "the perhaps totally unjustified implication that the minister has something to hide."

Cossitt repeated Marchand's comment that "if they wanted to go fishing in his office they would have to use their guns."

Outside the House, Marchand said he has accumulated 175 cubic feet of files in 10 years as a minister.

Most of them were in the Public Archives of Canada and employees had spent the last two weeks, following an earlier RCMP visit to his office in search of material related to an investigation of Sky Shops Export Ltd., compiling an index of the files.

The Sky Shops investigation has been connected in the Commons with a 1972 lease extension for the company's duty-free shop at Montreal International Airport and with Liberal fund-raising.

The RCMP raided the parliamentary office of Liberal Senator Louis Giguere, a Montreal fund-raiser, in early November and seized files under warrant.

"I am not afraid nor am I hiding anything," Marchand said outside the House, "but the RCMP cannot go fishing through my files."

"They can have any document they want relating to their investigations; they can make photocopies and look at anything as long as I am there."

He said it was a matter of principle adding "I have my rights."

"I do not want to oppose the RCMP," he said, "but I want them to deal with MPs and ministers as civilized persons."

He said he would not let anything go without knowing what they, the RCMP, were looking for.

Marchand also said he had not yet found any documents in his possession dealing with Sky Shops.

NO OFFICIAL TRIDENT PROTEST

OTTAWA (CP) — A New Democratic MP called on the federal government Wednesday to make an official protest to the U.S. government against the proposed construction of a nuclear submarine and missile base in Washington State, 60 miles from Victoria.

Stuart Leggatt was refused consent by Liberal MPs to make his motion calling on External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen to lodge the protest in Washington, D.C.

Leggatt was referring to the recent announcement of the construction of the Trident nuclear submarine and missile base in Bangor, Wash., without prior consultation of Canadian authorities.

He observed that the city of Vancouver has declared a special week of "concern" about the Trident project.

Macdonald Seen As Grit Leader

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Progressive Conservative Party will fight its next federal election battle against a new Liberal leader unless Prime Minister Trudeau calls a snap election in the spring, John Fraser, Conservative leadership candidate, predicted Wednesday.

The Conservative MP for Vancouver South said that Trudeau is rapidly losing his party's support because he has bungled such issues as the cabinet's over-ruling of the prices review board's rejection of the recent federal postal workers settlement.

Fraser said that Finance Minister Donald Macdonald will replace Trudeau within two years.

"The Liberal government may pull a fast election in the spring on the pretense of needing a mandate from the people on their inflation control program," said Fraser.

"Otherwise, there won't be an election for two years, and in that, there will be a new leader of the Liberals.

Turner is a former finance minister who resigned this fall. Macdonald took over his portfolio.

The mountain grape.

In the last 10 years, from the vineyards of California and B.C.'s Okanagan Valley, a new kind of wine has established itself among the great wine classifications of the world.

The Mountain wine. Mountain wines are made with grapes grown in upland or hillside vineyards. And while the mountain grape may not grow as prolifically as its cousin grown on the flat valley floor, it compensates by producing a distinctive and finer wine.

At Calona, two of our mountain wines are Mountain White and Mountain Red. Both are made with grapes grown on the upper slopes of our Okanagan Valley vineyards. Wine from these grapes is aged to maturity, then blended to provide wines of great character.

Mountain Red is light in colour and body with a very soft character. An extremely pleasant wine, Mountain White is a quite dry, medium body wine, light in colour, subtle and mellow to the palate. Try a glass of one of our Mountain Wines and see for yourself the difference the mountain grape makes.

A Yuletide Treat?

OTTAWA (CP) — An unimaginative civil servant in Ottawa is responsible for the foul-up of mail service in the Arctic settlement of Rankin Inlet, Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey told the Commons Wednesday.

He rejected a suggestion by Wally Firth (NDP — Northwest Territories) that he personally travel to the Central Arctic community to provide service there during the Christmas rush.

"But I will certainly send the unimaginative civil servant who is responsible for the foul-up there very shortly, preferably between Christmas and New Year's," added the minister.

Firth complained the Rankin residents, most of them Eskimos, receive incoming mail through a volunteer but are without other postal services such as money orders.

Firth said the post office should upgrade the Rankin Post Office so more money can be paid for office rent and salaries.

The Missing Bag Case Filed

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative leadership contender Heward Graffety appealed in the House of Commons Wednesday to Transport Minister Otto Lang to help find his bags.

The Brome-Missisquoi MP complained that Air Canada has lost his bags in six occasions since he began his cross-Canada campaign in preparation for the February Tory leadership convention.

He said he suspects that the problem is centred at the infamous Toronto terminals.

Lang said he regretted that Graffety is reaching out for support in his campaign from the "peculiar" Tory MPs who keep attacking Air Canada which he called "the great Canadian airline."

He asked Graffety to describe the missing articles, but added that Air Canada has improved its lost luggage figures to an impressive degree.

"Considering the few bags now being lost, I am glad that so much of the loss is concentrated with the honorable member," Lang said.

JOYLESS DUTY

OTTAWA (CP) — Barring persons 65 and over from the unemployment insurance program is "a joyless necessity" that must be done for economic reasons, Manpower Minister Robert Andras told the Commons Wednesday, as debate resumed on a package of Unemployment Insurance Act amendments, that the proposal will save the government $120 million annually.

How You Write On To the Age of 102

Hands up, now, those of you who remember our notes here not too long ago on having lunch at the Union Club and observing the businessman's mind in its native lair? Just as I thought. A very poor attention-span there in the back of the room. Always remember that you may be asked questions at any time.

Well, anyway, much to my surprise, having had some sport with mine hosts after a luncheon there, I was invited back with a hearty show of good fellowship all around. It is now evident to me that businessmen are very good at taking absolutely any joke that doesn't cost them money.

Writers are notoriously unkind to businessmen, probably as a defensive mechanism to justify the inefficiency and disorganization of their haphazard methods (Sinclair Lewis, for example, created Babbitt as the most enduring, most hateful prototype, but Lewis couldn't add up a dinner cheque and often forgot to put on his socks in the morning.)

It is also true that businessmen have little or no concept of how writers operate and this, as we shall see, became abundantly clear at the Union Club.

Once again I was the guest of R.J., Top Management, and present, as well, were The Advertising Man and The Banker. This time, however, we were joined by the man I will refer to simply as The Efficiency Expert, a chap with such a knowing, piercing gaze that I was jolly glad mother had sewn my shin plasters to my mittens.

We had hardly been introduced, joked with the motherly waitress and ordered our fillet of sole before the Efficiency Expert turned to me with a shark-like smile and remarked, "So you're the columnist, eh? Boy! You fellows certainly have a sweet life!"

Normally my reaction to this would simply be to strike viciously at the man with my gold-headed walking stick, but I had left it in the vestibule, and, besides, it seemed a good chance to explore once more the executive mind at work.

I favored the Efficiency Expert with a profile view of the tic that pulsed under my left eye, nervously brushed the imaginary lint from my lapels and bade him continue. "Continue," I said, dimpling.

"Three little columns per week," the Efficiency Expert said, wonderingly. "Why, I dictate more than that every day before lunch."

I murmured something about the demands of a more-or-less fresh idea each day, the rope on which to string the wooden beads, and mentioned the perils of snow blindness which afflicts so many columnists facing the unsoiled waste of copy-paper on those days when the idea isn't there. It was mixing metaphors, but I didn't care.

The Efficiency Expert drew a genuine silver pencil from his breast-pocket and began to mark figures on the tablecloth, a thing I had seen before only in movies.

"How far are you ahead with your columns?" he asked.

"Sometimes I am an entire day ahead," I said, defensively, like a man trying to establish a credit rating, "and as recently as 1965 I was two entire columns ahead."

"Just as I thought," the Expert cried. "You aren't going at it in a business-like way. Now"—he began to write rapidly on the tablecloth with his genuine silver pencil — "our yearly average for columns, allowing for the customary three-week vacation, would be 147 columns, right?"

"If you say so," I said, "but it's an exhausting thought."

"Let us say, now, that you were to write two columns each and every day for a year, right? That would mean that you would do 730 columns in a year which would give you a surplus of 583 columns. In 10 years you would have accumulated a stock-pile of 5,830 columns — or nearly 39 years of columns ahead!"

"Good God!" I said.

"How old are you?" the Expert asked.

I told him. He scratched some more figures on the tablecloth.

"Right! On this recommended schedule when you reach the age of 65 you will have enough columns written to keep appearing in the paper until you are 102 years of age — without writing another line!"

"There is no reason in the world why you shouldn't produce two a day, but if you could write three a day—or 1,095 columns per year — then, at the age of 60 you would be able to retire, but still have your columns appearing for the next 40 years!"

"It boggles the imagination," I said.

"How long's it take you to write a column?" The Efficiency Expert asked, caught up in the miracle he was creating.

"Well," I said, "not counting the incubation of the idea, it generally takes six to eight hours. Most of this time is spent watching the construction of the building next door, walking back and forth to the soft-drink machine and eating Eberhard Faber Ebony pencils."

"All that would go if you applied business principles to your operation," he said. "Waste motion, as our time studies show, is the root of inefficient production. You must program yourself to a planned output — let's say 500 words per hour. The man with the definite objective is the man who gets the job done."

"I know a writer who only wrote one word in three days," I said, in my defence," and that was the word 'the'. You should come by and watch Arthur Mayse sometime. There are days when it takes Arthur an hour and a half to roll the paper in his machine. This is the way we all are."

"All pretence," snapped the Efficiency Expert. "Any businessman could organize your kind of writing just as he organized an accounting office. I wouldn't be at all surprised, in fact, if the whole operation couldn't be computerized."

Well, I'd have killed him right there, but, of course, there are certain things you just don't do in the Union Club.

Teachers' Arbitration Opens Here

An arbitration hearing into the salary dispute for Lower Vancouver Island zone teachers began today under direction of arbitration board chairman and Vancouver lawyer Kenneth Brawner.

The three-man board, which also includes Victoria lawyer Noel Paget, representing trustees, and J. A. Sprague representing teachers, must hand down its award by Dec. 31.

Two days were scheduled for the hearings at the Media Centre, behind Greater Victoria School Board administrative offices.

If the dispute is not solved by Dec. 31, the board chairman has until Jan. 5 to decide on an agreement retroactive to Jan. 1, under provincial legislation. The retroactive provision was designed for this year only.

Santa's Helpers Behind Bars

Fresh Start For Those Broken Toys

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The Toyota pickup laden with goods wheeled into the federal medium security prison at William Head.

Stopping at the gate, guards pawed through the cargo, taking some items and placing them aside. Then they waved the truck into the prison grounds where willing hands carried what was left of the load into a make-shift repair shop. There the inmates set to work.

Once again the prison's toy program was under way.

For four years now the inmates, through the auspices of the John Howard Society of Vancouver Island, have received used and broken toys from Victoria merchants and citizens.

In repairing the discarded dolls, games and toys, the prisoners have relied more on imagination than the scant materials they're able to scrounge from the prison shops.

But each year it's been a success, and this one is shaping up the same way.

Right now the men are putting the finishing touches to their handiwork for the big moment Saturday when 48 children of inmates arrive to meet Santa . . . and his bag-full of gifts.

Mike Bennett, head of social development at William Head, said much of the credit for the program goes to a 62-year-old inmate named Frank, a habitual criminal serving an indefinite sentence.

Frank's been the organizer, the prime mover since its inception.

Willie Blonde, co-ordinator for the Island's John Howard society, said the toy program gives the inmates a rare treat — a chance to do something for their own families.

June Young, secretary of the Victoria area council of the society, described the public response to the program, despite a low-key pitch, as nothing short of remarkable.

This year the society placed toy barrels in the Hillside and Mayfair shopping malls. Sears and Eaton's gave the group a number of rejects and several people from Vic West to Uplands phoned to say they had toys to give if someone would pick them up.

The toys ranged from stuffed dolls to hockey games, four bikes and even a pogo stick. Some didn't make it past the front gate. Guards "censored" a set of walkie-talkies, some plastic knives and toy guns.

Those toys not used by the inmates are returned to the society for distribution to needy families.

But for the prisoners themselves, the toy program allows a fleeting departure from the tedious routine of jail life.

And as one inmate wrote in a letter of thanks to the John Howard workers, "it's a pleasure to exercise some unselfishness."

CHORISTERS at Glad Tidings Tabernacle can measure their output in candlepower—all 21 feet of it—specially built in Medicine Hat to support 50 singers around its base. Public performances by the choir will be at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Saturday and Sunday. (Bill Halkett photo)

Saanich to Seek Provincial Aid On Escape Cost

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich council is tired of picking up the tab for overtime police work caused by Wilkinson Road jail breaks and will pressure the provincial government for compensation.

Ald. Fred Severson said today he had been deluged with complaints from ratepayers after Tuesday's escape of 10 prisoners.

"They want to know what the hell Saanich is doing about it," he said. "They want to know what kind of overtime hours our men are logging at the expense of the ratepayers."

After a meeting of the Saanich police commission today, Mayor Ed Lum said the council will contact the attorney-general's department demanding action.

He agreed with Severson that Saanich taxpayers shouldn't pay the price when there is "laxity in the (provincial prison) system itself."

Lum was highly critical of the Wilkinson Road administration, stating the window that the 10 men had used to escape Dec. 16 was the same one used by Danny Cain in his escape last July.

"Those same bars were not put back in the proper manner," Lum said, adding Saanich was not informed of the break until more than an hour after it happened.

"We were able to get nine cars on the road," he said, "But it didn't accomplish very much because by that time they could be far away."

Lum warned residents to be extra careful until the six escapees still at large are recaptured.

"It's impossible to say what these desperate men will do. I want to warn residents to lock their doors at all times," Lum said, "Before they open their doors they should make sure they know who is (at the door). They've seen pictures of the men in the papers. If they see anybody suspicious they should phone the police immediately."

37% Increase In Provisional Region Budget

The Capital Regional Board Wednesday approved a provisional operating budget of $10.6 million for next year, a jump of 37 per cent over spending this year if it was to go untrimmed.

But directors were assured by board chairman Jim Campbell there will be ample opportunity for a thorough overhaul before the final budget goes to the provincial government for approval at the end of March.

The estimates are close to 10 times the region's budget five years ago but the board has taken on a score of new jobs since then.

Among them is community health services, the biggest single item in the estimates at $3.1 million, up from $2.6 million this year. The provincial government contributes 70 per cent of this.

Since 1970 the region has also consolidated debt repayment for individual municipalities. Loan repayments under long-term financing of a variety of projects is forecast at $2.7 million in 1976, an increase of about $800,000.

Among other services added to the regional role are solid waste disposal, recycling of some waste, purchase of parks, a budget for land-banking and housing, operating of recreation programs and construction of most of the Juan de Fuca recreation complex and an arena at Sooke, take-over of the Royal Theatre, and major expansion in building inspection and sewer construction.

The regional board will have a surplus of almost $700,000 from this year to help offset rising costs and growing programs. The surplus stems largely from a three-month strike-lockout of civic employees earlier this year.

Among regional budget estimates for 1976:

$832,000 for the Juan de Fuca recreation centre, an increase of almost $300,000.

$406,000 for garbage disposal in contrast to $161,000 this year.

$506,000 for trunk sewers and sewage disposal. This year's budget was $265,000.

$710,000 for planning, up from $480,000 this year.

Man Paid $170 for Pound Of Marijuana, Court Told

A man arrested for possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking said one pound cost him $170, county court was told Wednesday.

Const. David Thornley of Victoria police said the accused, William Edward Harland, 23, of 383 Burnside was carrying a brown paper bag Dec. 20, 1974, when he approached a house at 1024C Pandora where police had just conducted a drug raid.

Thornley said Harland told him the cost of the marijuana when questioned inside the house.

"Did you bag it up yourself?" Thornley said he asked Harland.

The accused asked him what he meant.

"Did you place the marijuana in the bags?" the constable asked.

Harland replied he didn't think he wanted to answer.

Thornley said there was a plastic bag inside the brown paper bag and there were 20 small bags containing a substance inside that plastic bag.

Four bags were sent for analysis to the federal laboratory in Vancouver, he said.

Cross-examined by defence counsel Doug Christie, Thornley agreed the analyst's report on marijuana was on only one of the four bags. Thornley agreed he personally did not conduct any tests on any of the bags.

Selection of a jury was delayed for half an hour when no court reporter appeared.

Judge Stewart apologized to the jury panel, saying "something has gone wrong with the administration today . . . it's disgraceful and inexcusable." He said the absence of a court reporter was not the responsibility of the reporter who eventually came.

Construction Bounces Back

Housing starts totalled 299 in the Greater Victoria area during November to bring the 11-month total to 3,290, up 29.2 per cent from 1974.

The increase represents a remarkable rebound after the municipal strike-lockout which hampered construction early in 1975.

A construction surge which began in July has carried through strongly month by month with the result that all totals are ahead of 1974 across the board.

Starts for apartment units for the first 11 months totalled 1,641, up from 1,228 in 1974. Starts of single family homes totalled 1,280, up from 1,209.

In November the 299 starts consisted of 94 single family homes, 199 apartment units and six duplex units. The previous November the totals had been 90 single family homes, 50 apartment units and two duplex units.

The supply of new homes and apartment units is fairly tight but there is a surplus of condominium units.

There are 71 newly-completed apartment units yet to be rented and 209 new condominium units on the market for sale. The apartment units are mainly in two developments on Esquimalt Road and on Admirals Road in Esquimalt.

Most of the condominium units are in Victoria. There are 133 new condominum units for sale in Victoria City, 41 in Esquimalt and 35 in Saanich.

Meanwhile, the supply of surplus new single family homes is diminishing. At the end of November there were only 34 on the market, down from 112 at the same time last year. Of the 34, only 10 are under $60,000. Most of these houses are in Saanich.

Victoria's buiding surge hit its stride in July after being weak during the first six months.

In May the starts had totalled only 160, down from 441 and in June 203, down from 317.

In July they rose to 341, up from 168 and in August were 280, up from 217. The surge continued through autumn with September starts totaling 361, up from 153, and October starts soaring to 663, up from 221.

Completions during the first 11 months totalled 2,477, down from 3,861 in 1974. The high total in 1974 was the result of an earlier construction boom in 1973. The high rate of starts this year will push 1976 completions much higher than 1975 levels.

Byelection On Feb. 28

Feb. 28, 1976, has been set as the date for a Victoria civic byelection to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of MLA-elect Sam Bawlf from city council.

City clerk Morran Waller said today the deadline for receipt of nominations will be three weeks before the byelection, Monday Feb. 9. A revised voters' list will be posted Jan. 5.

Thetis Lake Park Protected Forever

No subdivisions, shopping centres or marinas will ever despoil the beauty and tranquillity of Thetis Lake Park.

A bylaw passed almost unnoticed by city council last week, amid the excitement of the provincial election, virtually guarantees protection of the park in perpetuity by reserving all the watershed lands north of the Trans-Canada Highway "for park purposes for the pleasure, recreation and enjoyment of the public."

"This is probably the best thing that has ever happened to our city parks system," parks administrator Cliff Bate commented today.

Reserving the property of nearly 1400 acres as a park is seen as an effective safeguard against any future threat of development.

BATE
. . . "best thing"

To remove the designation would require not only a two-thirds majority vote of all council members but also the approval of the lieutenant-governor-in-council (the provincial cabinet), who could also order any such proposal to be put to a referendum.

Last week's final approval of the bylaw ends years of arguing and indecision by city council on the future of Thetis Lake Park, which at one time the city wanted to hand over to the Capital Regional District.

Banks Reap Bonanza In '75 Profit Picture

By AL FORREST
Business Editor

The profit performance of Canada's major banks was very impressive this year but the timing was wretched.

The banks are submitting briefs to the federal government asking for more powers when the Bank Act is revised in 1977. They want the right to expand into new fields of financing and to have fewer restrictions on their operations.

Their only argument will be the question of fairness — other types of loan companies do not have the same tough restrictions — but the banks can not argue financial need.

In 1975 all major Canadian banks reaped a bonanza.

On average, their net operating revenues increased 41 per cent and profits were up 45.7 per cent.

Royal Bank — It reports operating revenues after taxes of $287.8 million up 36 per cent from 1974. Gross revenues totalled $2.1 billion, up 13 per cent, expenditures were $1.8 billion, up 10 per cent and net profit was $86.7 million, up 40 per cent.

Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce — Net operating revenues were up 27 per cent at $262.4 million after revenues of $1.8 billion (up 13 per cent) and expenditures of $1.6 billion (up 11 per cent). Net profit was $94 million, up 48 per cent.

Bank of Montreal — Net operating revenues totalled $195.7 million, up 80 per cent (after a disappointing performance in 1974). Gross revenues totalled $1.7 billion, up 8 per cent, while expenditures hit $1.5 billion, up 2 per cent. Net profit was $81 million, up a full 80 per cent from the previous year.

Nova Scotia — Net operating revenues totalled $214.6 million, up 54 per cent. Revenues totalled $1.4 billion, up 20 per cent, while expenditures hit $1.2 billion, up 16 per cent. Net profits totalled $64.7 million, up 45 per cent.

Toronto-Dominion Bank — Net operating revenues totalled $175 million, up 27 per cent. Gross revenues reached $1.2 billion, up 10.6 per cent, while expenditures were $996 million, up 8 per cent. Net profit was $59.6 million, up 24 per cent.

BCN — Net operating revenues totalled $46.6 million, up 26 per cent. Gross revenues were $424 million, up 21 per cent, and expenditures were $377 million, up 21 per cent. Net profit was $16.1 million, up 24 per cent.

Provincial Bank — Net operating revenue totalled $27.8 million, up 7.8 per cent. Gross revenues were $273 million, up 18 per cent, while expenditures hit $245 million, up 19.7 per cent. Net profit was $8.2 million, up 7.6 per cent.

Mercantile Bank — Net operating revenue was $18.5 million, up 165 per cent. Gross revenues totalled $94 million, up 27 per cent, and expenditures hit $75 million, up 12 per cent. Net profit was $8.9 million, up 84 per cent.

Bank of B.C. — Net operating revenue was $5.8 million, up 216 per cent. Gross revenue totalled $55.8 million, up 28 per cent, while expenditures totalled $50 million, up 20 per cent. Net profit was $1 million, up 231 per cent.

Unity Bank — This small bank was the only one of the 10 to show a loss. It had revenues of $16 million (up 22 per cent) but had expenditures of $17 million (up 21 per cent) for a loss of $607,000.

Libel Suit Filed

MONTREAL (CP) — Damage suits totalling $900,000 have been filed in Quebec Superior Court by Robert McGregor and McGregor Travel Co. against The Gazette, its publisher and two of its reporters.

The suit declares that The Gazette published a front-page article Aug. 9 containing "false and libellous material designed to bring ridicule and injury to the plaintiff.

Listed as defendants are the Montreal Gazette Ltd., the Gazette Canadian Printing Ltd., publisher Mark Farrell and reporters Patrick Doyle and Dave Thomas.

Fourth Term Seen Sure For CRB Chief Campbell

It appears director Jim Campbell will be unopposed when he seeks the chairman's post for a fourth year at the Capital Regional Board's inaugural meeting Jan. 7.

Campbelll, a farmer on Saturna Island, said Wednesday he would stand for chairman again and Victoria Ald. Alf Hood, who challenged him last year, said he would not.

A sampling of the other directors on the 18-member board indicated no other contenders at the moment. The new board will elect its chairman at the inaugural meeting.

Campbell sought and won authority from the board at its last meeting of the year Wednesday to launch moves aimed at amending operation of the Island Trust.

The trust was established by the former NDP government to oversee development on the Gulf Islands and the chairman termed it "highly objectionable" that it can overrule plans approved by regional and technical planning advisors.

Campbell will call a meeting next month of regional directors involved with the Gulf Islands. It will probably frame proposed ammendments to the trust legislation, to be presented to the provincial government.

In other business, retiring Sooke director Ron Dumont said he hopes the new board will tackle two matters which have left him troubled.

One is the inequity in compensation for directors who have to travel longer distances to attend meetings. It would be a shame if working men find they can't afford to serve on the board, he said.

Dumont added that there are problems with regional staff making "political decisons" in the course of their work, but he did not specify beyond saying drainage and sewage problems in Sooke were involved.

He and other board members agreed the region has too much trouble enforcing its bylaws relating to such things as building permits.

More enforcement and more inspections are needed, he said.

"We've lost most of the cases we've taken to court."

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen, also retiring from the board, said there is a need for directors to sit down and reappraise the regional role.

Areas like Colwood and Langford "are just crying" for incorporation, he suggested, to bring greater order to administration and development.

Victoria's concern over the need for naming a single prime engineering consultant on the Clover Point sewage outfall project prompted a sharp exchangebetween Pollen and director John Goult from Oak Bay.

Goult, chairman of the regions' works committee, had just received Pollen's letter on the subject an hour before the meeting.

The region has been using two consulttants for about two years and Pollen was challenged on why naming a prime consultant was suddenly a matter of urgency in the long-delayed project.

SEPARATE ROOMS

PARIS — Industrial and underdeveloped countries met in separate rooms today in an attempt to hammer out a compromise conclusion to the international energy and resources conference.

By mid-afternoon, a Canadian official predicted agreement would be reached within hours.

Before the 27 delegations returned to the conference table, Canadian External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen presided at the closed-door meeting of the eight industrial representatives at the conference.

Seven members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and 12 members representing needy countries held their own meeting.

At issue is the mandate to be given four new commissions to be set up to deal with energy, raw materials, development and finance.

Canada and other industrial countries want instructions to the commissions left broadly defined.

Many of the underdeveloped states and oil exporters, led by Algeria, demand more specific directions aimed at improving the plight of the needy countries in aid, trade and financial relations with the industrial states.

Skagit Flooding Story Raises Furore in B.C.

A Seattle Times story quoting B.C. Social Credit party president Peter Hyndman on plans to flood the Skagit Valley has raised a furore among citizen groups on Vancouver Island and the lower Mainland.

Hyndman is quoted in the Dec. 11 issue of the paper as saying when the crunch comes, the party will concluded that the interest of anglers must be sacrificed for "those 20,000 voters in the Vancouver area who will have a whole new lake for a playground."

But Hyndman said Wednesday that no policy decision on the flooding of the Skagit Valley has been made by his party.

"I'm very concerned to find myself quoted on the subject," he said. "It is an inaccurate and misleading report of a personal observation which I qualified by saying the decision would be up to the new cabinet."

The party president said he was engaged only in a speculative conversation with the Seattle reporter.

Bill Otway, executive director of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, said he was shocked to read Hyndman's statement in an American paper.

"I hope Hyndman's views don't represent the policy of the new government," he said. "If it does, it means we are back to square one—sell-out of our natural resources."

During the election campaign all parties were asked for their views on the Skagit, said Otway, and Socred candidates were noncommital.

Otway said Hyndman's claim that flooding 500 acres of the Skagit Valley to provide power for Seattle City Light will also provide a recreation area for boaters is nonsence.

"For most of the year, there will be a three-mile mud flat," he said.

Howard English, a member of the International Salmon Committee, said if the government allows flooding of the valley it will be ignoring the wishes of thousands of British Columbians.

An agreement to raise the Ross Dam in the U.S. and flood the Canadian valley was approved by former Social Credit premier W. A. C. Bennett but the NDP government was negotiating to cancel the arrangement.

Resources Minister Bob Williams, whose department has been negotiating with Seattle City Light to change the agreement, said he was disappointed to see the new president of the Socreds "reverting back to old form."

He said Hyndman was "rather naive and juvenile to back off a situation like this."

Williams today also released the latest communication between B.C. and Seattle regarding the Skagit.

The latest B.C. proposal made in a letter Nov. 10 from deputy lands and forests minister Norm Pearson would not allow any further flooding and return all taxes and rental payments to Seattle on lands held by the city in expectation of the flooding.

B.C. has worked out what it believes would be the proper rent for Seattle to pay on the existing flooding and computes it to be $3.3 million annually, rather than the $34,000 now being paid. The new amount is worked out on the basis of International Joint Commission principles established previously in power exchange agreements.

Therefore, in the proposed agreement B.C. would want a fairer economic rent on the existing flooding although it says B.C. is not interested in resolving the dispute by negotiating additional compensation.

B.C. also proposes to pay Seattle for its study costs in the project and for its land holdings in the Skagit Valley.

The province would also provide funds for an international park straddling the border in the valley and would agree to provide Seattle with electrical power at full market rates from other sources.

Seattle has acknowledged receipt of the B.C. proposal.

Williams said he hoped the various interest groups which have fought against additional Skagit flooding will continue their efforts and that new Socred MLA Jack Davis will bring to the Socred government the opposition to Skagit flooding he expressed when he was a federal Liberal cabinet minister.

PAIR GUILTY IN COQUITLAM HOLDUP CASE

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Two Montreal men were found guilty in B.C. Supreme Court Wednesday of bank robbery, confinement of a bank employee, attempting to murder five RCMP officers and possession of weapons for a March holdup.

The trial followed a bank robbery in nearby Coquitlam and a wild gun battle with RCMP through three nearby municipalities.

A jury of four women and eight men deliberated more than seven hours before delivering verdicts which convicted Real Cardinal and Leonard Methot.

A third man, Mario Proulx, 30 was found not guilty of similar charges.

Mr. Justice Douglas Andres remanded the men to Jan. 5.

Cardinal, 32, was the driver of the get-away car for the gang and drove the escape car while Methot fired dozens of shots at following police.

Bassett Turned Down in NFL Bid

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League has closed the door on expanding into Birmingham, Ala., and Memphis, Tenn., for the 1976 season, but refused to lock out the cities for future consideration.

"We had no negatives to Birmingham and Memphis," said Dan Rooney, president of Pittsburgh Steelers and chairman of the NFL's expansion committee. "Our problems are expansion per se—not these two cities."

Representatives of Memphis and Birmingham, hoping to join the NFL for the 1976 season, were told Wednesday that they would have to wait, and even then are not sure bets to becoming members of the league.

Among other cities the NFL said have indicated interest in having an NFL franchise are Phoenix, Ariz., Toronto and Honolulu.

John F. Bassett of Toronto, president of Memphis Grizzlies, said he is not satisfied with the committee's reasoning.

"We will ask that the matter be put to a vote of the NFL members and we sincerely hope the league as a whole will not accept this recommendation," Bassett said in a statement. "We feel the committee has done a great disservice to the American football public and especially to the Mid-South community, which has shown tangible support and enthusiasm for our application."

Either team would need approval of 20 of the 26 present club owners.

Memphis and Birmingham were the strongest members of the defunct World Football League. When the WFL folded, the two teams applied for expansion franchises in the NFL.

Working against the admittance of Memphis and Birmingham into the NFL is the fact that two new teams—Seattle, Wash., and Tampa, Fla.—are joining the league for the 1976 season.

"One of the things Memphis wanted was to participate in the college draft," NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said. "This would cause serious problems for our two new teams, Seattle and Tampa, and the weaker teams in the league. The teams in the lower half of the standings are concerned with the draft."

Rozelle said the fact that both Memphis and Birmingham were in the WFL "had no bearing on our thinking at all."

He said the climate for expansion right now is poor.

"I'm not an expert, but take a look at the National Hockey League. For the first time in history you have softness in tickets. And a number of people say it's because of expansion.

Clarke Named Canada's Male Athlete of '75

BOBBY CLARKE
. . . runaway choice

By MEL SUFRIN
CP Sports Writer

Bobby Clarke, the brilliant Philadelphia Flyers centre who has twice been named most valuable player in the National Hockey League, is Canada's male athlete of the year for 1975.

The 26-year-old native of Flin Flon, Man., who has led the Flyers to two consecutive Stanley Cups, is the runaway choice of sports writers and sports broadcasters in the annual year-end poll conducted by The Canadian Press.

Runner-up Toller Cranston of Toronto, the Canadian senior men's figure skating champion for the last five years, and third is Bernie Parent, the 30-year-old native of Montreal who tends goal for the Flyers.

Clarke, a persistent forechecker and superb playmaker, has become the heart of the Flyers since being drafted from Flin Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Junior League in 1969.

He and Parent are the prime reasons why Philadelphia, admitted to the NHL in 1967, became the first expansion club to win the Stanley Cup.

Clarke, five-foot-10 and 176 pounds, is a remarkably durable athlete who has rarely missed a game in six full seasons in the NHL. Last season he played in all 80 games, scoring 27 goals and adding a record 89 assists.

He was named centre on the first all-star team and won the Hart Memorial Trophy as the league's most valuable player, an award he had previously captured in the 1972-73 season.

His truculence, exemplified by the fact that he spent 125 minutes in the penalty box, was perhaps best demonstrated in the 1972 Canada-U.S.S.R. hockey series.

Playing on a line with Paul Henderson and Ron Ellis, then of Toronto Maple Leafs, Clarke taught the Russians a few things about battling in the corners. And he wasn't reluctant to admit he used his stick to slash at the ankles of opponents.

The son of a miner, the baby-faced Clarke suffers from diabetes but for the first few years in the NHL was reluctant to discuss the condition.

"I've proved I can play in the league," he said two years ago. "In the beginning, if I didn't play well, I didn't want them saying it was because of that."

Having established himself as a genuine all-star, he became general campaign manager of a diabetes association in the Philadelphia area in 1973.

In the CP poll Clarke received 35 first-place votes, 10 seconds and five thirds for 130 points based on a 3-2-1 value. Cranston received 52 points on four firsts, 14 seconds and 12 thirds and Parent 44 points on 10 firsts, four seconds and six thirds.

Fourth was jockey Sandy Hawley of Mississauga, Ont., with 35 points, fifth Ottawa Rough Riders slotback Jim Foley with 27 and sixth Bobby Orr, the Boston Bruins defenceman who won the NHL scoring race, with 21.

Ferguson Jenkins, the major league pitcher from Chatham, Ont., who was named Canadian athlete of the year for a record fourth time in 1974, received only a single third-place vote after a so-so season with Texas Rangers.

Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets, who set a professional hockey league record with 77 goals for the World Hockey Association team last season, received five first-place votes and 18 points. Hull was named athlete of the year in 1965 and 1966.

Cougars Unbeaten on Trip

One line, the Mike Will-Al Hill-Curt Fraser combination, accounted for half of the goals Wednesday as Victoria Cougars tripped host Lethbridge Broncos 8-5 in a Western Canada Hockey league game before 3,113 fans.

Fraser accounted for two goals and one assist while Hill and Will each scored once and had two assists.

It was the first victory after three straight ties in the five-game road trip which concludes Friday with a game against Chiefs in Kamloops. Victory moved Cougars to within five points of third-place Medicine Hat Tigers in the Western Division and left the Victoria club with two games in hand over the Alberta team.

Jeff McDill added two goals to the victory while Greg Tebbutt and Gregg Anderson fired single goals for Cougars, who held period leads of 4-3 and 6-4.

Darcy Regier and Doug Gillespie scored twice each for Broncos, who outshot Cougars 37-21 and scored four of their goals on power plays.

Cougars were assessed 10 of the 12 minor penalties and each club was nailed with two majors. Victoria defenceman Leroy Heck picked up a match penalty and automatic one-game suspension for head-butting.

Despite his badly-bruised shoulder, Cougar captain Jim Gustafson drew assists on both of McDill's goals to run his record point-per-game skein to 34 games, including three last season.

Elsewhere, Flin Flon Bombers and Brandon Wheat Kings played to a 4-4 deadlock, Winnipeg Clubs defeated Edmonton Oil Kings 7-1 and New Westminster Bruins tagged the Chiefs with a 7-1 loss.

Prior to Wednesday's game in Flin Flon, the teams completed the three minutes, 42 seconds remaining from a Tuesday contest that was halted by referee Morris Winnychenko after a bench-clearing brawl involving players, fans and police. Neither team scored and the Bombers picked up a 4-2 decision.

Terry Hochstetter and Gary Soetaert of Brandon and Rich Gosselin and Kevin Marinos of Flin Flon were suspended indefinitely for their parts in the scrap.

The lengths of their suspensions will be determined by league president Ed Chynoweth after he has studied the game report.

Chynoweth will be kept busy, too, studying the report on the Winnipeg-Edmonton game. The action was interrupted midway through the third period by a full-scale brawl that resulted in 15 players — including both starting goaltenders — being thrown out of the game. Paul Mulvey of Edmonton and Rick Dorman of Winnipeg, the initial combatants, received double majors and game misconducts.

Shutouts New for Saints

By The Canadian Press

Minnesota Fighting Saints are human after all.

The Saints, who went through three full World Hockey Association seasons without being shut out, were blanked Wednesday night for the second time in three games.

Frustrated by the acrobatics of New England goalie Christer Abrahammson, the Saints battled the Whalers to a scoreless tie, the second such stalemate in league history.

The Saints, who lost 1-0 at Cleveland last week, really didn't deserve to be shut out Wednesday at St. Paul, but Abrahammson ignored a cut near his left eye suffered in the first period and turned aside 39 of their shots.

"Abrahamsson is without a doubt the best goalie in the WHA and I'm not trying to blow smoke at anybody," said Whaler coach Jack Kelley. "He's played phenomenal hockey for us the last year and a half."

The Saints had nine shots on goal in the overtime period, including a half-dozen good opportunities, but Abrahamsson didn't wither.

Playing before a crowd of only 2,362, third smallest in the club's history, the Crusaders were kept in the game in the second period by Juhani Tamminen, who scored both Cleveland's goals.

SCHETTERER SCORES

BURNABY — Rolf Schetterer, a 15-year-old student at S. J. Willis Junior High School in Victoria, placed first in Greco-Roman and second in freestyle at the two-day Simon Fraser University invitational wrestling meet that ended Wednesday.

Schetterer pinned all his opponents in the first round during the Greco-Roman competition and only suffered one loss, a 7-5 decision to Sandy McKinney of Caribou Hill Senior High School in Burnaby, during the freestyle competition.

He has also been selected as a possible member of the Canadian team that will compete in the Pacific rim championships at Vancouver in January.

JOYCE GOING TO CAMP IN THE FLORIDA SUN

Joyce Yakubowich of Victoria, a sprinter who won two gold medals at the recent Pan-American Games, was among the 10 B.C. athletes selected to attend a national team warm-weather training camp Dec. 26-Jan. 5 at the University of Florida in Gainesville.

The camp is being financed through provincial government agencies, regional track associations and clubs and the Canadian Track and Field Association.

A party of 13 coaches will accompany 56 of Canada's top sprinters and middle-distance runners to the camp, which will give them ideal training conditions to prepare for the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal.

Marg Bailey, Donna Barber, Stephanie Berto, Margo Howe, Patti Loverock, Ann Mackie, Tinker Robinson and Al Dukowski — all of Vancouver — and Karen Beatch of Surrey complete the B.C. contingent.

Coaches John Freeman and Kim Young of Vancouver will also make the trip.

Sabres Cut Down by Slump

By The Canadian Press

Any visions of a Stanley Cup that danced in the heads of Buffalo hockey fans in October look like pipedreams now.

They appeared capable of running away and hiding from the competition in the Adams Division race when they opened the schedule with eight successive wins, especially when their main challengers, Boston Bruins, lost Bobby Orr early in the season.

But that early momentum was lost somewhere by the Sabres, who now find themselves in a tie for the division lead after they lost 3-1 to Detroit Red Wings on Wednesday night.

The Bruins, who once trailed the Sabres by 13 points, grabbed a share of the top rung with a 3-2 win over Washington Capitals.

Veteran Ed Giacomin blocked 28 Buffalo shots, seven of them by Jocelyn Guevremont, as the Sabres continued a slump in which they have picked up only seven points in nine games.

Detroit goals by Mickey Redmond and Nick Libett in the 57th minute broke a 1-1 stalemate.

For the first time this season, all 18 NHL teams played on the same night Wednesday.

In Wednesday's other games, New York Islanders blanked New York Rangers 3-0, Philadelphia Flyers downed Chicago Black Hawks 4-2, Toronto Maple Leafs downed St. Louis Blues 6-2, Minnesota North Stars edged Atlanta Flames 3-2, Kansas City Scouts edged Vancouver Canucks 6-5, Pittsburgh Penguins drubbed California Golden Seals 9-2 and Montreal Canadiens edged Los Angeles Kings 2-1.

The Capitals managed a team record 39 shots on goal but went down to another defeat when John Bucyk scored for the Bruins in the last minute of the game.

The Islanders' forwards forechecked ferociously while skating with a discipline and determination that the Rangers seemed to lack.

"They just forced us and forced us," said Rangers goalie John Davidson. "They kept us shooting from bad angles and far out.

"They took advantage of our mistakes and didn't make any of their own."

Reggie Leach scored his 20th goal of the season and goalie Wayne Stephenson kicked out 27 shots as the Flyers sent the Hawks down to their fifth defeat in six starts.

Rookie Greg Hubick scored twice for the Leafs, who drew a less-than-capacity 16,308 fans for their annual Young Canada hockey night promotion.

Rookie Leads Braves

By The Associated Press

Rookie Tom McMillen, getting a rare start for Buffalo, scored a career-high 18 points Wednesday night to lead the Braves to an 88-85 win over Houston Rockets in a National Basketball Association game.

McMillen, who had averaged less than 15 minutes and five points in 17 previous games and hadn't played at all in Buffalo's last two outings, got the call when Bob McAdoo's sore heel flared up.

The six-foot-11 McMillen, a former Rhodes scholar, played 25 minutes, hit seven of nine shots, four of six free throws and pulled down seven rebounds.

In Wednesday's other games, Boston Celtics overpowered Kansas City Kings 118-104, Golden State Warriors trimmed Detroit Pistons 113-102, New Orleans Jazz trounced Washington Bullets 105-88, Phoenix Suns downed Milwaukee Bucks 116-111 and Cleveland Cavaliers shaded Seattle SuperSonics 115-111.

In American Basketball Association games, Denver Nuggets dropped New York Nets 106-103 and Indiana Pacers whipped the Spirits of St. Louis 113-102.

"I know I have to be patient, but it does get frustrating at times," McMillen said. "Coach (Jack) Ramsay told me Monday to be ready, but I didn't know why. Sometimes it's an injury, sometimes a person is down."

Despite McMillen's heroics, the Braves needed Bob Weiss' 18-foot jump shot with 14 seconds to play to take the lead for good.

Jim McMillian led Buffalo with 23 points while Rudy Tomjanovich topped Houston with 19.

PLANS FOR SECURITY

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League and police forces in eight league centres are drawing up special plans to ensure two hockey teams from the Soviet Union are not assaulted by political protesters when they begin a North American tour later this month.

Frank Torpey, head of the NHL's security force, said Wednesday his office is bracing for any eventuality during the eight-game tour by the Soviet teams — Army and Wings — against NHL clubs Dec. 28-Jan. 11.

Lakers Climb

Lake Cowichan Lakers moved to within two points of second-place Victoria Western Homes Buckaroos by downing James Bay Athletic Association Canadians 9-3 in a Big Six Hockey League game Wednesday at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Larry Myers set the pace for Lakers with three goals while Jim Kipp and Jim Peterson added two each and singles were produced by Don Peterson and Jim Bjork.

RUGBY
max low

It looks as though Gillie Greig will have to wait for another time to make his grand exit from first-class rugby.

The stylish standoff-half, who plays for Oak Bay Wanderers in the Victoria Rugby Union, admits he was hoping to make the B.C. Rep team and then announce his retirement from the game following the three-week tour to England and Wales in March.

But when selectors recently came out with the 23-man tour squad, Gillie's name wasn't on it. Instead, his name is on the list of non-travelling reserves and that is the one big shock in the selection of the provincial lineup.

The 33-year-old Greig, once a Scottish trialist, is probably the most experienced standoff-half in Canada. He plays regularly for the Victoria Crimson Tide, has played several times for B.C. and represented Canada once in a test match against Wales two years ago.

But for the selectors it has obviously been a case of a choice between different styles when deciding on this key position. For the benefit of the non-rugby-fan readers, the standoff-half is the vital position, much like the quarterback spot in Canadian football, and is the pivot of the backline.

Greig is a clever standoff and one of the best tactical kickers in the game, but he is not known for his running the ball and opening up the play.

That's where his rival, John Billingsley of the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, got the nod. He doesn't have Gillie's kicking talents, but he's a devastating runner who can make the breaks to give men like centres Pat Simmons of Cowichan and Stu Barber of James Bay, and wingers Spence McTavish of Vancouver Ravens and Wes Thomas of Cowichan plenty of opportunities to score tries.

And that's what the selectors wanted — a fast-moving team that could turn on some wide-open, attractive rugby.

The reason Greig didn't make it as a travelling reserve is that if Billingsley is injured then Simmons, who is also a first-rate standoff-half with a tricky sidestep, can move into that berth and reserve utility back Jim Wenman of Oak Bay can step into the centre spot. It makes sense.

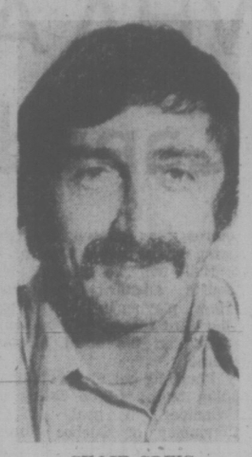
Still, that's not much consolation for Gillie Greig.

"I was looking forward to going on this as a last tour . . . and sort of finishing with a flourish," he confesses. Although Gillie admits Billingsley is a good choice and says he thought if he (Greig) was going to make it, then it would have been as a reserve standoff.



GILLIE GREIG
. . . misses tour list

And will he finish now without the flourish?

Gillie smiles.

"Well, no I think I'll stay on now," he says. "There's talk of a Tide trip to Japan next season, so I'll stick around and try for that."

Selects Score Late For Fifth Tour Win

MONTREAL (CP) — A goal by Vladimir Repnev with two minutes to play broke a 4-4 tie and Moscow Selects went on to defeat Montreal Juniors 6-4 Wednesday night in an exhibition hockey game.

The goal ruined a comeback by the Juniors, members of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League, who were bolstered by members of Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League as well as Quebec Junior and university clubs.

Repnev caught the Montreal defenders running around in their own zone after Aleksandr Lobanov had just missed an open net after goaltender Ed Walsh had failed to clear the puck.

Vladimir Deviatov added a goal into the empty net with 34 seconds remaining after Walsh had been lifted for an extra attacker.

Alexei Volchenkov and Deviatov staked the Soviet Union club to a 2-0 lead in the first period and early in the second the visitors, who now have five wins and a loss on their tour of Canada, took a 3-0 edge on a goal by Sergei Kotov. Vladimir Belousov scored Moscow's fourth goal in the third period after Montreal had come back to narrow the Selects lead to 3-2 on second-period goals by Garth McGuigan and Normand Dupont.

After Belousov scored at 8:45, the Juniors came back with goals 18 seconds apart with Dan Geoffrion scoring at 15:59 and Dupont at 16:17 to tie the score.

Moscow, with six members from each of the Red Army and Wings of the Soviet teams in their linepup, fired 28 shots at Walsh, an all-star last season with the AHL Voyageurs.

Referee Pierre Gibeau of Montreal assessed 10 minor penalties, six against the Selects.

In Toronto, the Ontario hockey Association Major Junior A league, saying it can't see the point of men playing against boys, plans to avoid future exhibition series against touring senior clubs such as the Selects who meet the OHA Toronto Marlboros tonight.

VEECK PICKS A PAL TO PILOT WHITE SOX

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Richards, a firm believer in speed, pitching and defence in his managing days of the 1950s, Wednesday was named manager of Chicago White Sox by new owner Bill Veeck.

Chuck Tanner, who has three years to go on a current managerial contract with the American League baseball team, will be allowed to stay with the club in any other capacity he chooses, Veeck added.

Veeck, who officially took over as owner Tuesday, and Richards, 67, are close personal friends.

"It's a strange and unusual situation that we find ourselves in," Veeck said at a news conference. "I have been gone for some years from baseball and have not had the opportunity of working with Chuck Tanner. Because the coming season is so important to me I feel I have to go with people I know well for the coming year."

Veeck, 61, considered a hustler and maverick in the usually staid circles of baseball owners, said Richards was his first and only choice to take over field operation of the club.

Veeck, who was twice rejected by the American League owners before getting approval to purchase the financially troubled club, formerly owned the White Sox from 1959 to 1961. He led the South Side charter member of the American League to its first pennant in 40 years in 1959 largely on the strength of speed, pitching and defence that Richards is known to be firm believer in.

Richards managed the White Sox for four seasons from 1951 through 1954 when the club saw its best days since the late 1930s.

Also during his tenure attendance jumped past the one-million mark for the first time in White Sox history.

Ashe on Top

NEW YORK (AP) — Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe has been ranked the No. 1 male tennis player by the United States Tennis Association, it was announced Wednesday.

Ashe, 32, won 10 tournaments during the last year, including Wimbledon and the World Championship of Tennis. Ashe, also ranked No. 1 in 1968, was fifth in 1974.

Jimmy Connors, 23, ranked No. 1 last year in the United States and the world, was second on the strength of his nine titles, including the Dewar Cup, South African Open and U.S. Indoor championships. He lost to Ashe in the final at Wimbledon.

Roscoe Tanner, a Wimbledon semi-finalist, was ranked third, and Vitas Gerulaitis moved up from 21st last year to fourth on the USTA list. Eddie Dibbs was ranked fifth. Tanner had 7.999 points, Gerulaitis 7.485 and Dibbs 6.905.

Runner-up Esquimalt Legion will get a chance to gain a little ground and a little revenge while playing at home against first-place Saanich Braves in a South Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at 8 p.m. Friday in Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Esquimalt, which moved to within eight points of Saanich by tripping Fuller Lake Flyers 6-2 in a Wednesday night game at Fuller Lake Arena, has a 14-1-1 record against the other four teams in the league but is 0-4-1 against the Braves.

John Bechtold and Gord Brooks fired two goals apiece to lead the Esquimalt attack against Flyers while single goals were added by John Entzminger and Kevin Park.

Greg Adams and Pat Hicks connected for the Flyers.

New WHA All-Star Format Sends Canada Against U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — Two veterans of the World Hockey Association—Bobby Hull and Gordie Howe—will lead their respective teams when the league's fourth annual all-star game is held Jan. 13 in Cleveland.

This year, it will be the Canadian Division against players from the Eastern and Western Divisions of the WHA, or as the league puts it, Canada vs. the United States in honor of the 200th birthday of the U.S. in 1976.

Ben Hatskin, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the WHA, announced the teams Wednesday as chosen by sports writers and broadcasters from Canada and the U.S.

Hull, of Winnipeg Jets, led the voting for the Canadian team at left wing, and Howe, playing president of Houston Aeros, was chosen at right wing for the first U.S. team.

Hull will be playing his fourth all-star game and Howe, playing in the WHA for the third season, will be competing in his third all-star game.

Rounding out the first Canadian team is Joe Daley of Winnipeg in goal, J. C. Tremblay of Quebec Nordiques and Lars-Erik Sjoberg of the Jets on defence, Vaclav Nedomansky of Toronto Toros at centre and Hull's linemate, Anders Hedberg, at right wing.

Gerry Cheevers, for the fourth consecutive year, has been voted the No. 1 goaltender for the U.S. team. Other members of the U.S. team are Pat Stapleton of Indianapolis Racers and Paul Shmyr of Cleveland Crusaders on defence, Andre Lacroix of San Diego Mariners at centre and Gene Peacosh of San Diego at left wing.

Bill Dineen of Houston will coach the American squad and Jean-Guy Gendron of Quebec will coach the Canadian team.

Other members of the U.S. team are Christer Abrahamsson of New England Whalers in goal, Kevin Morrison of San Diego and John Schella of Houston on defence, Dave Keon of Minnesota Fighting Saints at centre, Claude Larose of Cincinnati Stingers at left wing and Mike Walton of Minnesota at right wing.

Fantasy Of Love, Occult

A fantasy drama of love and the occult, Dark of the Moon, will have a final performance tonight at 8 at Esquimalt Secondary School auditorium.

It is being presented by drama classes of Esquimalt and Highrock Junior Secondary under the direction of Michael Farr.

Nearly 100 students and teachers have been involved for six weeks in the school's most ambitious project ever. The set covers the entire stage and the action takes place at floor level in a theatre-of-the-round situation.

The play develops around a star-crossed love story with John the Witch Boy in love with Barbara, the farmer's daughter and begging the powers that rule his world to turn him into a human.

Tickets will be available at the door.

Castro Lashes U.S.

MIAMI (UPI) — Fidel Castro Wednesday lashed out at the United States and reaffirmed his country's alliance with the Soviet Union in an address to more than 3,000 delegates at the opening session of the first Communist party congress.

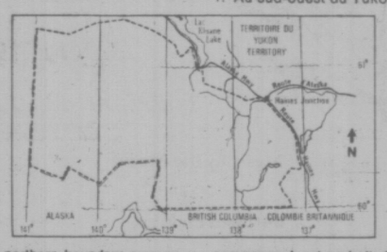
Castro's two-hour speech at Havana's Karl Marx Theater included his customary barbs against "Yankee imperialism" and praise of Soviet-Cuban friendship. Most of the speech was devoted to a recounting of the accomplishments of the Cuban revolution during his 16 years in power.

Castro's brother, armed forces minister Raul Castro, made a few opening remarks and then turned the podium over to the prime minister.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO SET ASIDE AS RESERVES FOR NATIONAL PARKS OF CANADA, LANDS IN THE YUKON TERRITORY AND IN THE NORTHWEST TERRITORIES

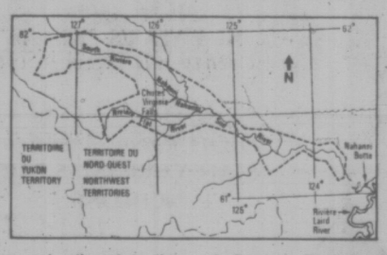
Notice is hereby given that the Governor General in Council intends, pursuant to subsection 11(1) of An Act to amend the National Parks Act, Statutes of Canada, 1974, chapter 11, to issue a proclamation to set aside as reserves for National Parks of Canada the lands numbered 1, 2 and 3 hereunder as outlined respectively by dotted lines on the following maps and briefly described thereunder.

1. In the Yukon Territory adjoining the westerly and southerly boundaries of that Territory:



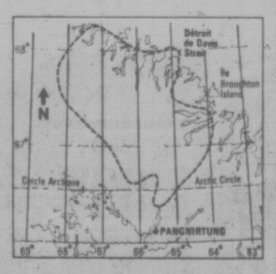
The area is approximately 8,500 square miles about 100 miles west along the Alaska Highway from Whitehorse and incudes the Saint Elias Mountains and the Seward Glacier. The western boundary follows the international border between Alaska and the Yukon Territory. The southern boundary follows the border between the Yukon Territory and Alaska and British Columbia. The eastern boundary generally parallels the Haines Road from the southern boundary to Haines Junction, then follows the Alaska Highway and from there to a point on the western shore of Kluane Lake. From there the northern boundary crosses the Donjek Range and the Donjek River in a westerly direction to the international border with Alaska.

2. In the Northwest Territories along the South Nahanni River;



The area is approximately 1,800 square miles in the southwestern corner of the Northwest Territories just east of the Yukon boundary. The central spine includes a section about 170 miles in length of the South Nahanni River which flows southeast and a side branch which is a section of the Flat River. The boundaries are approximately two to eight miles from either side of each of the rivers. Nahanni Butte is about 12 miles from the southeastern boundary.

3. In the Northwest Territories; on and adjacent to the Cumberland Peninsula of Baffin Island;



The area is approximately 8,300 square miles located mainly north and west of Pangnirtung Pass, most of the area being north of the Arctic Circle and including the Penny Ice Cap. The town of Pangnirtung is the gateway of the area, the southeastern boundary being at the head of Pangnirtung Fiord. The western boundary curves south from Nudlung Fiord in the north, encircling the Penny Ice Cap and running south of Greenshield Lake east to Freya Peak then south along the west side of the Weasel River to Overlord Peak at the head of Pangnirtung Fiord. The eastern boundary runs from Overlord Peak northeasterly along the Weasel River through Mount Fleming to the north of Pangnirtung Fiord and from the Maktak Fiord across the Cumberland Peninsula to Quajon Fiord and from there follows the coast of Baffin Island facing Davis Strait, through the mouths of Narpaing Fiord, Okoa Bay and Nedlukseak Fiord to the southern shore of the Nudlung Fiord.

PLEASE NOTE: All of the above textual descriptions are general only. The complete official description of each area in English or French and a reference map may be obtained at the following offices:

AVIS D'INTENTION DE METTRE À PART, À TITRE DE RÉSERVES POUR DE FUTURS PARCS NATIONAUX, DES TERRES SITUÉES AU YUKON ET DANS LES TERRITOIRES DU NORD-OUEST

Avis est donné par les présentes que le Gouverneur général en conseil a l'intention de faire une proclamation, conformément au paragraphe 11(1) de la Loi modifiant la Loi sur les parcs nationaux, Statuts du Canada, 1974, chapitre 11, en vue de réserver pour la création de parcs nationaux du Canada les terres nos 1, 2 et 3 délimitées par les pointillés des cartes ci-après et brièvement décrites ci-dessous.

1. Au sud-ouest du Yukon:

Une zone d'environ 8 500 milles carrés, qui commence à 100 milles environ à l'ouest de Whitehorse, longe la route de l'Alaska et renferme le massif Saint-Elie et le glacier Seward. Cette zone est bornée à l'ouest par la frontière internationale entre l'Alaska et le Yukon et au sud-ouest par la limite entre le Yukon, l'Alaska et la Colombie-Britannique. De la limite méridionale à Haines Junction, la limite orientale est en général parallèle à la route de Haines, puis elle suit la route de l'Alaska et s'arrête en un point de la rive occidentale du lac Kluane. La limite septentrionale commence à cet endroit. Elle traverse la chaîne de montagnes et la rivière Donjek en direction ouest et va rejoindre la frontière internationale entre l'Alaska et le Yukon.

2. Dans les Territoires du Nord-Ouest, le long de la rivière Nahanni-Sud:

Une zone située dans l'angle sud-ouest des Territoires du Nord-Ouest, immédiatement à l'est de la limite du Yukon, et d'une superficie d'environ 1 800 milles carrés. La partie centrale comporte un tronçon, d'une longueur d'à peu près 170 milles de la rivière Nahanni-Sud, qui coule en direction sud-est ainsi que l'un de ses bras latéraux qui est, en fait, une partie de la rivière Flat. Les limtes de cette zone s'étendent de deux à huit milles environ des rives de chaque rivière. Nahanni Butte se trouve à peu près à 12 milles de la limite sud-est.

Zone d'environ 8 300 milles carrés, située principalement au nord et à l'ouest du col de Pangnirtung, sa plus grande partie se trouvant au nord du cercle arctique et comprenant la calotte glaciaire Penny. La ville de Pangnirtung est la voie d'accès à cette zone, la limite sud-est de cette dernière se trouvant à la partie antérieure du fiord Pangnirtung. La limite occidentale, depuis le fiord Nudlung, situé au nord, décrit un arc en direction sud, encerclant ainsi la calotte Penny et passant au sud du lac Greenshield, à l'est du pic Freya, puis longeant la rive occidentale de la rivière Weasel jusqu'au pic Overlord qui se trouve à la partie antérieure du fiord Pangnirtung. A cet endroit commence la limite orientale, qui longe la rivière Weasel en direction nord-est et traverse le mont Fleming situé au nord du fiord Panghirtung. Du fiord Maktak, elle traverse ensuite la péninsule de Cumberland pour aboutir au fiord Quajon. De là, elle longe la côte de l'île de Baffin, en face du détroit de Davis, traverse l'entrée du fiord Narpaing, de la baie Okoa et du fiord Nedlukseak et rejoint la rive méridionale du fiord Nudlung.

Did You Ever Go to Bed with JFK? Judy Won't Answer That

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A dark-haired mystery woman who befriended reputed Mafia figures said Wednesday she had a "close, personal relationship" with President John Kennedy and visited him at the White House "more than 16 or 20 times.

Judith Campbell Exner told a news conference she also met the late president at other locations. A reporter asked: "Did you ever go to bed with John Fitzgerald Kennedy?"

"That's in the personal area," she replied, and refused to elaborate.

A Senate intelligence committee's report on CIA assassination plots said earlier this week there were 70 telephone calls between an unidentified person and the Kennedy White House.

The report said Mrs. Exner had no involvement in CIA assassination plots.

Mrs. Exner also confirmed intelligence committee findings that she was asociated with underworld leaders, saying she had "a relationship" with reputed Mafia kingpin Sam Giancana, who was shot to death at his suburban Chicago home last June.

"My relationship with Sam Giancana and my relationship with Johnny Rosselli another reputed Mafia figure were of a personal nature and were no way related to or affected by my relationship with Jack Kennedy, nor did I discuss either of them with the other."

Asked who introduced her to Kennedy, she said "a mutual friend."

Mrs. Exner said the friend introduced her to Giancana in Miami Beach, Fla., in late March, 1960, and that she first met Kennedy in early February, 1960, in Las Vegas, Nev.

Her last telephone conversation with Kennedy was in late 1962, she said.

The intelligence committee's report said their final phone talk came only hours after FBI Director Edgar Hoover had a luncheon meeting with Kennedy on March 22, 1962.

Alta. Klan Man Fined $2,000 In Death Case

CALGARY — The former Imperial Wizard of the Alberta Ku Klux Klan was fined $2,000 in provincial court Wednesday when he was found guilty of charges in connection with the death of a Mexican immigrant.

Tearlach mac a Phearsion, 27, of Calgary, was fined $1,500 for criminal negligence and $500 for dangerous use of a firearm. He was charged after Elias Aguilar Ramirez, 23, whom Mac a Phearsoin brought to Canada as a servant, was found shot to death Sept. 12, 1974.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Wendy Yoshimura, arrested with Patricia Hearst and other remnants of the Symbionese Liberation Army two months ago, will be out of jail on bail by Christmas, her attorney says. She was granted a bail reduction Wednesday, from $100,000 to $25,000 and a family friend has already offered to post a cash bond of up to $25,000.

EDMONTON — Dr. George Abouna, a Calgary organ transplant specialist, has lost his bid to be reinstated on the medical staff of the Calgary Foothills Hospital. In a written judgment released this week, Mr. Justice D. C. McDonald of Alberta Supreme Court refused Dr. Abouna's application for an interim injunction to restrian the hospital from dismissing him.

NAPLES, Italy — Police arrested a 16-year-old shepherd at nearby Caserta today and charged him with murdering his younger brother, who refused to lend him $6. Police gave this account: Renato Mauriello, 14, refused to give the $6 to his brother, Vittorio, because that was all he had managed to save during many months of looking after a few sheep. Vittorio poured pesticide into a glass of water on Renato's bedside table. Renato drank it, had stomach pains and died. Vittorio confessed under questioning.

NAIROBI — Maurice Strong of Canada, in his last statement as executive director of the United Nations environment program, said today that the industrialized countries have become less enthusiastic about preserving the earth's resources. Strong added that "man is in danger if, in the course of improving his lot, he destroys the very resources of this earth on which his future depends."

MIAMI, Fla. — "How sweet it is," comedian Jackie Gleason, 59, said after he was married to Marilyn Horwich in a ceremony before a handful of friends at a private club. The marriage was Gleason's third. He was divorced from his second wife Nov. 19 after a long legal battle. Mrs. Horwich, the widowed mother of a 13-year-old boy, is the sister of choreographer June Taylor, a longtime Gleason associate.

OTTAWA — Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the anti-inflation board, is planning a sunshine vacation in Mexico for two weeks over Christmas and New Year's, a spokesman at the board said Pepin is expected to head south right after presentation to Parliament Thursday night of regulations governing his two-month-old board and its program of pay and price controls, the spokesman said.

Beryl Plumptre, board vice-chairman, will be in charge during Pepin's absence. A spokesman said she plans to be absent from the office "only on the statutory holidays" — Christmas, Boxing Day and New Year's Day.

Pioneer Christmas Dinners Were Time to Eat . . . and Eat elizabeth forbes.

At Christmas and New Year festivals of long ago, in the isolated forts throughout the country, everyone who could, ate too much, James McCook told members of Victoria Branch of the B.C. Historical Society, at its annual dinner.

Those pioneers "never worried about over-eating," he said, "because most of them had tried under-eating."

Fur traders were full of stories about eating the webbing of their snowshoes and boiling deer hide into soup, and prairie homesteaders knew what it was to eat boiled wheat and stewed gophers.

McCook went on to tell of a visitor to Kamloops on a day in 1823 who had breakfast with Chief Trader Prown.

"I want you to brace yourselves," he warned, "what the chief trader served that morning was roast dog with cheese, followed by cake and rum."

He also pointed out that at Kamloops, if horses failed to come up to the mark in carrying furs from Fort Alexandria to Fort Okanagan, it was common practice, through the year, to butcher and eat them "with everyone pleased to get a bit of the meat."

At the Yuletide, on the other hand, it was quite different.

There was plenty to eat and to drink and in the larger forts, at least, the feasts were often served in the best and largest rooms available.

Delving through old records, the speaker found the story of a Christmas Day in York Factory "where the officers gathered to dine in a room with fine paintings on the walls, blazing fires on the hearths and where a table was loaded with well-cooked geese, a massive roast of beef, two dozen partridges, a large savory piece of salt pork, plus two decanters of port wine and two of madeira."

"There was nothing dull about Fort Edmonton either," he pointed out.

Paul Kane, the artist, had Christmas dinner there in 1846 and he described the setting as "a room about 50 feet by 45, the walls and ceiling made of planks on which had been painted large and dramatic designs."

Kane said those designs were "startling" ... others present said they were "indecent" ... and the Indians "said nothing."

Fort Garry also had its color scheme. In the mess room there the walls were painted up to three feet from the floor in bright blue. Then there was a band of brilliant red, followed by yellow up to the ceiling which was painted bright orange.

"Imagine facing that combination of colors after the tenth loyal toast," McCook said.

At the smaller forts, he continued,. there were no such rooms or displays of art.

"But always there was a table for the feast and if there was no dance floor, doors or even walls could be borrowed and laid flat for people to dance on."

It was a "poor fort indeed," that could not produce one or two fiddlers, plus a flute and a Jew's harp.

"The musicians, in the main, were expected to rattle off reels and jigs, and if they tended to make the same tune serve for half a dozen dances, no one minded because the dance steps were pretty much the same, too."

Dancing made people hungry then, just as dancing does today. So there is no wonder the Yuletide festivals were memorable for over-eating.

In 1859, Lieut. Charles Wilson, a member of the boundary commission in British Columbia made this crisp notation:

"Christmas Day is nothing without beef and as we could not get it any other way, we killed our cow."

Finally-the speaker told of a dinner, in 1891, on a bright sunny Christmas Day in Calgary.

The menu included oyster soup, boiled salmon a la Rochelle, duchess, boiled, scalloped or fried potatoes, boiled leg of Southdown mutton, oyster patties, orange fritters, fricasse of chicken, prime ribs of beef with Yorkshire pudding, young turkey stuffed with cranberry sauce, stuffed wild goose with apple sauce, spring lamb with mint sauce, partridge with bread sauce, haunch of antelope with jelly and black bear with brown gravy.

That was just a good start.

After the bear, the diners delved into lobster salads, English plum pudding with brandy sauce, custard flavored with wine, wine jellies, blanc mange, meringue a la creme, lemon water ice, Christmas fruit cake, figs, walnuts, raisins, stilton cheese, port wine, French coffee and Ceylon tea.

A feast that "was a far cry from the roasted dog and cheese on a day in Kamloops, in 1823."

In my next column I will bring the McCook narrative about old-time Christmas and New Year festivals, to a conclusion with a story about the way the first Christmas tree decorations appeared in Fort Garry and how those decorations were made possible through the ingenuity of a young Victoria girl, Jane Douglas.

MIMOSA SAUCE FOR SALMON

By MARY MOORE

We were having a birthday party here and I asked the guest of honor to name the favorite meat I should prepare. "Salmon Steaks-"

I went to my dependable fish store and bought beautiful red salmon steaks. They were frozen. My fishman said all the salmon was arriving frozen just now.

Of course I will tell you how to broil the salmon steaks but it is the Mimosa Sauce that accompanied them that was a worthy complement to such beautiful fish.

SALMON MIMOSA

Six ¾" thick red salmon steaks (thawed)
¼c melted butter
1 tsp. salt

Sauce

1-3 c. mayonnaise (no substitute)
3 Tbsp. flour
1 tsp. salt
1¾ c. milk
1½ tsp. grated lemon rind
2 Tbsp. lemon juice
1 hard-cooked egg, separated.

Place thawed steaks on greased broiler pan. Combine butter and salt. Brush steaks with half the mixture. Place fish 3-inches away from preheated broiler burner. Broil 4 or 5 minutes. Turn, brush with remaining sauce and broil 3 or 4 minutes longer or until fish is just opaque at bone — no longer. DO NOT OVERCOOK. Remove to a heated platter. Keep warm.

To make sauce combine mayonnaise, flour and salt in a saucepan. Gradually stir in milk. Cook over medium heat stirring constantly until smoothly thickened and mixture comes to the boil. Add lemon rind and juice. Sliver egg white and fold into sauce. Sieve egg yolk. Pour sauce over fish and sprinkle with sieved egg yolk. Serve at once.

Vegetables More Than Runner-Up To Meat Course

Meal planners usually pay less attention to vegetables than they do to the meat dish. Particularly during the winter months, it's easy to serve canned or frozen vegetables.

But with a small amount of care in preparation, with a touch of variety and with good combinations, vegetables can become more than just a runner-up to meat.

Why not try a meat alternate in some of your meals, or in other words, substitute a vegetable protein food for an animal protein food. By taking a closer look at the type of protein foods you are selecting, you are at the same time limiting the amount of money spent.

Dried beans, for example, are one of the least expensive sources of protein. Only ½ cup cooked dried beans, peas or lentils provides about as much protein as 1 egg or 1 ounce of meat, fish or cheese. Since they do not contain all the components of protein that we need for growth, serve them in combination with small amounts of other animal protein or vegetable protein foods such as vegetables, cereals or nuts.

Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada have developed a "Vegetable Nut Pie" a delicious vegetarian main-dish combination. It seems a tidy way to serve Canadian vegetables, all neatly enclosed in a crust.

You may increase the amount of protein per serving by offering sliced luncheon meat or cheese with the pie. Other possible main dish combinations are vegetable curries on rice or noodles, green peppers stuffed with nuts, legumes and seeds, and hot or cold open-face sandwiches.

However, use only carefully developed recipes since the nutritive value in terms of complete protein is of utmost importance.

Since rising food costs are the topic of discussion these days, vary your menus to include meat alternates and you will help cut food costs. Your family will still get the protein they need in their diet.

VEGETABLE NUT PIE

1 7-ounce can kernel corn
1½ cups sliced mushrooms
1 cup cauliflowerettes
1 cup broccoli flowerettes
1 cup green peas, canned or frozen
¾ cup lima beans, canned
½ cup roasted peanuts
¼ cup fat
¼ cup flour
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups liquid from corn plus water
Pastry for 1—9-inch pie crust

Vegetable nut pie is tasty main dish

To make sauce melt fat, blend in flour and seasonings. Gradually add liquid. Stir and cook until smooth and thick. In a large bowl, combine vegetables, nuts and sauce. Pour into greased 9-inch deep-dish pie plate. Cover with pastry, seal edges and cut steam vents. Bake 25 to 30 minutes at 425 Deg. F. Let stand 10 minutes before serving. 6 servings.

Chocolate Fondue

Chocolate Fondue Sauce

8 ounces semi-sweet chocolate
½ cup milk
1 cup caramel sundae sauce
2 teaspoons vanilla

Melt chocolate. Add milk, caramel sauce and vanilla. Stir until smooth and hot. Pour into fondue pot.

Weight Loss Based on Eating Habits

NUTRITION BUYLINE

The fact that very few popular reducing diets have worked suggests that perhaps not enough time has been taken to become acquainted with some fundamental concepts of weight control.

Perhaps the most important of these concepts is that any increase in weight, regardless of how insignificant it may seem, should be reversed immediately. One ounce of fat not gained in the first place is better than the pound which must be removed later.

Second, the reason why unwanted weight has been gained must also be understood. Professional help may well be necessary since there are many causes for the "imbalance between caloric intake and caloric expenditure" which results in overweight. Sometimes, weight gain follows when a sedentary way of life is adopted without having made proportionate adjustment in food intake.

Physiologically, however, rapid weight gain seems to occur at rather predictable intervals in the life of the female: (1) during early infancy and at the beginning of puberty; and ((2) after maturation at about age 20 to 21, during pregnancy, and at menopause.

The mature male, however (except for the tendency to gain weight during early infancy and at puberty), apparently has no specific physiological or chronological periods when there is danger of weight gain. He just slowly gains weight unless he take steps to reverse the trend.

Third unless a person truly wants to lose weight and is properly motivated to do so, failure is almost certain. Assuming that a person wants to lose weight and is willing to make the necessary adjustments in his way of life, he is ready for the following steps which constitute an adequate dietary regimen.

Check eating habits to determine whether a wide variety of foods providing all the nutrients needed for good health is being consumed. Is this variety being chosen from each of the following groups: milk and milk products: meat and meat alternates; fruits and vegetables; and whole-grain or enriched breads and cereals?

Reducing diets need not be nutritionally imbalanced in any nutrient, except for a decrease in calories. Make whatever adjustments are required in food choices to assure that the basic diet is a good one. Now, adjust the amount of each food item without eliminating any one food from the diet.

The key to weight reduction is to eat less food without haphazardly eliminating any one food completely. Let quality and flavour be a guide; enjoy a little bit of all foods, but not an inordinate quantity of any one.

Reducing diets also should be based on foods normally consumed if they are to lead to a lifetime of successful weight maintenance. If good eating habits are not instituted during the period of weight reduction, continuing maintenance of "ideal" weight will be most difficult, if not impossible. Important as they are, however, careful selection of food and reduction of food intake are not enough — a person must also indulge in regular physical activity commensurate with his physical condition.

Programs of proper weight maintenance, ultimately, should replace the current preoccupation with weight loss. The change from the "reducing" diet to that for weight "maintenance" is very subtle, with only minor adjustments in the amount of food eaten. Experience gained during the initial weight reduction, however, should make it possible to make whatever adjustments are needed later to reverse temporary weight-gain setbacks.

The inability of bizarre reduction diets to provide adequate weight control because of their radical departure from the normal daily diet is what contributes to their downfall. A successful weight reduction diet is one which, with minor caloric adjustments, becomes an enjoyable way of life and provides desirable weight maintenance.

Walnut Dream Squares

BASE

¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup shortening
½ cup icing sugar
2 egg yolks
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour

TOPPING

½ cup (approximately) red currant or apple jelly or raspberry or strawberry jam
2 egg whites
½ cup granulated sugar
¼ Tsp. cinnamon
¼ Tsp. salt
1 cup finely chopped walnuts (OR unblanched filberts or almonds)

To make Base in beater bowl blend thoroughly the butter, shortening, icing sugar, yolks and flour. Pat this base mixture evenly, with floured finger tips, into 13x9" ungreased pan. (NOTE: You may stretch this and make thinner squares for a Tea by patting into a 15x10" pan if desired.) Cool.

To make Topping beat egg whites with the granulated sugar until very stiff. Fold in cinnamon, salt and finely chopped nuts. Spread cooled base evenly with a thin layer of red jelly or jam. Now carefully distribute mounds of meringue over and with fork tip coax meringue evenly over all. Bake at 350 Deg. Fahr. 25 minutes (OR 20 minutes for 15 10" pan) or until a pale beige in color. Remove from oven and while still warm mark and cut into squares.

These cut neatly.

Short'nin' Bread Beloved by All

Mammy's little baby loves short'nin' bread!

At one time or another, nearly every one of us has sung that song . . . but how many people do you know who have actually eaten short'nin' bread? Very few. How often, in fact, have you even seen a recipe for short'nin' bread? Probably never.

It was with great interest, then, that I recently noted the formula for genuine, down-home short'nin' bread in what was left of an old spiral-bound copy of something called Charleston Receipts. I know nothing more about this book, since the first 12 and the last I-don't-know-how-many pages are missing . . . but I'm guessing that it's a "vanity" cookbook published approximately 20 years ago in Charleston, South Carolina.

At any rate, I found—on page 161 of the collection — Mrs. Henry F. Church's recipe for short'nin bread. I've tried it, it's good (in Lorna Doone cookie sort of way) and here's how you can make your own:

Cream one-quarter pound of soft butter and one-fourth cup of light-brown sugar. Add one and one-half cups of flour and roll the mixture out quickly about one-half inch thick on a figured board. Cut the dough with a small biscuit cutter and bake on a lightly greased and floured cookie sheet for approximately 20 minutes at 350 F.

Eat the little cookies hot or cold . . . and you'll know why mammy's little baby really did love short'nin' bread!

DEAR ABBY. I am very much in love with a 28-year-old woman I'll call "Terry." I am 31.

Terry and I have been living together for eight months. She claims to love me, but here's the problem: I want to marry her, but she says, "I don't want marriage."

Abby, can that be? Doesn't every woman want marriage?

We started living together as an experiment. It has worked out very well for both of us, so why shouldn't marriage work out?

Terry says, "Marriage will OBLIGATE us to live together. This way, we stay together because we choose to."

Maybe I'm old-fashioned, but I want the security of knowing that we belong to each other legally.

Terry says a marriage certificate is just a piece of paper, which doesn't mean anything because if the marriage doesn't work out, it can be exchanged for another piece of paper that will dissolve it.

How can I get her to marry me?—OLD FASHIONED.

DEAR OLD: You can't. And it's just as well, because while you may love each other, your ideologies are worlds apart.

DEAR ABBY: When our child started walking, we bought a harness for him. We use it to protect him in large crowds, unfamiliar surroundings and busy streets.

At first I felt hurt and even thought perhaps I was wrong when strangers would say, "What do you think he is — a dog?" Or, "That poor little thing. How can you do that to him?"

Now I am just plain angry!

Would those critics rather that our child be lost, be run over or fall down a flight of stairs? His harness has saved him from all these things.

Our child is now 2, and we will dispose of his harness soon, but until we do, I wish strangers would think twice before they make such unkind remarks. — INDIGNANT MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Perhaps if they thought twice, they wouldn't make any unkind remarks at all.

DEAR ABBY: I believe I read in your column that there is something a person can take to keep from crying at a wedding.

Please find out what it is and tell me. I am to be a mother of the bride, and I just know I am going to cry all over the place at my daughter's wedding, and I look terrible when I cry. My eyes get red and my nose runs and I sob and shake all over.

I even got emotional yesterday when I opened the closet door and saw my daughter's wedding dress hanging there!

Please, please help me. (I cried so hard just writing this I had to re-address the envelope.) — NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Call your family doctor and ask him to prescribe something for your nerves. There are many such tranquilizers on the market.

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago you gave some excellent advice to a woman who was in love with a married man. I clipped it and kept it. Its still good and ought to be repeated at least once a year. Here it is:

"Any woman who accepts the attentions of a married man, no matter how lonely, misunderstood or henpecked he claims to be, is cruel, inconsiderate, stupid and short-sighted." — FAITHFUL READER

DEAR ABBY: Years ago I read somewhere that it was perfectly proper for a man to wear his officer's uniform instead of a tuxedo to all occasions where formal attire is required.

My husband was a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force (World War II) and ever since, he's been wearing his uniform to formal affairs.

He has put on quite a lot of weight and has already had the trousers let out as much as possible, but I'm afraid the next time he wears them, something will give.

We are invited to a family wedding soon, and my husband has mentioned "getting the old uniform out" again, and that's my problem.

I don't want to hurt his feelings, but World War II was a long time ago, and I think it's time he put that uniform in mothballs and rented a tux.

So how do I tell him? HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: In English, dear. And with a smile.

Many people are not particularly keen on fish dishes, because they find them boring. However, the range of truly extraordinary fish dishes is almost limitless.

You will find some in the eight-page folder "Seafood Specialties" ("Tresors Gastronomiques de Fruits de Mer"). Besides the fish entrees, you will also learn how to prepare unusual sauces to further enhance your seafood concoctions.

For instance, Fillets Beaufort are baked fillets topped with a mixture of fried green peppers and onions.

You will also like the Molded Sole Fillets (Filets de Sole en Torsade). The fish is baked in a ring mold and garnished before serving.

You may also want to try some of the interesting seafood hors d'oeuvres. For instance, Mini-Bites call for canned salmon or frozen crabmeat which are made into bite-sized balls and rolled in crumbs or nuts. Also very tasty are halibut tid-bits. Serve them on toothpicks together with a dip.

Among the gourmet sauces is Richelieu Sauce. This consists of mayonnaise, sour cream, lemon juice and rind, plus a dash of Worchestershire sauce.

LIFER'STATES HIS VIEW:

Prison Pass 'Useful Carrot'

The following is an interview with five inmates serving lengthy sentences at William Head prison for murder kidnapping and trafficking. Under guard throughout the interview, the men discussed their views on the day pass program. To maintain their anonymity, fictitious names have been given to each.

William Head inmates say the public has been poorly informed about the day pass program.

They feel most people believe dangerous inmates are released from William Head each day, terrorizing the town, drinking, fighting and then returning to prison to rest up for another day of terrorization.

The inmates believe this is a gross misrepresentation of the program; that for every inmate who has escaped and does something irresponsible, there are hundreds constructively utilizing the program to help themselves and society.

"For instance, we get day passes to work with retarded children, we take them camping, out for Hallowe'en, to the museum, we built a fireplace for the Brownies in Sooke and other sorts of things you never hear about in the media," said Ron, who is serving 12 years for drug trafficking.

The prisoners all agree that the day pass program is important in maintaining contacts in a community so a person's roots are not totally withered away and that upon return to society he will be more of a functioning human being than an institutional robot.

The inmates also recognize that the program is an effective method of behavior modification.

"It's been a useful carrot for institutional stability," said John, serving a life sentence for murder.

Holds Back Punch

"You'd be amazed at the number of times an inmate has resisted punching another inmate in the nose because he has a pass coming up and doesn't want to blow it . . . I've done it myself."

When Frank was sentenced to life in 1966, he had a wife and two children.

There were no day passes at that time. His wife visited him twice a month, talking through a wire mesh or plate glass window.

"It was a real feeling of hopelessness and despair," Frank said. "Even on a good record, I couldn't get out to visit her and the kids.

"I was in for murder and there for good, and there were just no twos about it."

After three years, his wife divorced him.

"If there were temporary absences when I first went to jail, I might still have a wife and two children."

The other inmates concur with Frank.

"I've seen many marriages destroyed because a man does not have visiting privileges," said Ron.

"With day passes, I can visit my wife and am able to keep a relationship with her which would be an impossibility if she could only visit me here," he said.

John states their case even more frankly.

"Can you imagine a strong, healthy man locked up for years without contact with women," he said, adding that recognition of a man's sexual needs is one of the most subtle reasons for the day pass program.

"And it reduces homosexual activity in the prisons."

The inmates complain that all the public ever hears about are the outings to play bridge or such sports activities as swimming, hockey, soccer and basektball.

"But even these types of passes serve a purpose," Frank said.

"It gets an inmate into a social setting and gives the guards a chance to assess his credibility while under escort . . . you know, some day we'll all be out on the streets whether you like it or not."

John drew an extreme analogy of an inmate to a mad dog.

"Would it be better to keep a potential mad dog in a cage until his sentence expires or to let him out gradually . . .

Trouble—For Sure

"As long as he's in the cage, the police are right in saying there'll be no worries . . . but when his sentence expires, there'll be trouble for sure," John warned.

"Wouldn't it be better to release him gradually into society, first under guard, then unescorted, so when his term finally expires, he will be more adjusted and able to cope?"

The men objected to the use of the term "mad dog."

"Sure there are some guys here who know how to play the game and beat the system," said Ron. "We can't deny that escapes on passes do occur, but what about the great numbers of successes?"

Since January there have been more than 3,300 inmates released on passes and yet there have only been three violations.

"And there are so many safeguards," said Bill, serving a 15-year term. "We just don't say: 'Hey, I want a pass, I'm going out'."

An inmate may submit an application and name a sponsor for a day pass upon reaching eligibility. (Eligibility was explained in the first part of this series.) The application first goes to a living unit officer who assesses the general behavior of the inmate in the prison. If he approves the application, it then goes to the classification officer who conducts a study on the suitability of the sponsor. Next is the temporary absence board, which includes a member of the national parole service. Even if the board decides to grant the application for a pass, the director of the prison has the final okay and can veto the board's decision. The entire process of obtaining a pass takes a minimum of two weeks.

Al, another inmate serving time for drug trafficking, said the majority of the prisoners out on passes do conduct themselves in a responsible manner because they do not want to jeopardize the possibility of future passes.

"I have eight years left on a 12-year sentence and have only recently started going out on passes," Al said.

"And I'm not about to go out and get drunk because I know that if I do, I won't get another one . . .

"Besides, I guess I can get drunk here if I really wanted to."

When prodded on the possibility of home brew, the inmates remained mum.

Bill said all inmates returning on passes are first frisked at the front gate by two guards.

Lose Privileges

"We're then taken to another room where we have to strip every stitch of clothing in front of two other guards . . . if they have any reason to suspect we've been drinking or on drugs, we'll be charged with being unlawfully at large and lose our pass privileges for at least six months if not longer."

Then men were queried as to Dennis Lilley's comments to provincial court judge Harold Alder Oct. 27. Lilley, who pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large from William Head while on a bridge pass Oct. 24, told Alder:: "I got into a mickey of rye and I don't remember what happened."

Al immediately said Lilley was lying to the judge.

"I was with Lilley on that pass and he wasn't drunk," Al said.

"He did it to get the judge's sympathy."

CNR Wins $3.5M Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A $3.5 million damage suit against the Canadian National Railway was dismissed Wednesday in British Columbia Supreme Court. The multi-company suit against the CNR arose from losses suffered in a fire that destroyed the ocean dock in Prince Rupert on June 10, 1972. The dock was owned by the CNR. Plaintiffs in the action were: Granisle Copper Ltd., Canadian Stevedoring Co. Ltd., Bralorne Can-Fer Resources Ltd., American Can Co. Inc., American Can of Canada Ltd. and Canadian Fishing Co. Ltd.

Mr. Justice W. A. Craig said allegations of negligence by the CNR were based on a claim that the fire was caused by the spontaneous ignition of linseed oil-soaked rags which had been used by company workmen.

Lecours Wins Libel Action

VANCOUVER (CP) — Damages of $3,500 have been awarded to former Social Credit MLA Ernie Lecours in a British Columbia Supreme Court libel action. Mr. Justice Henry Hutcheon ruled Wednesday that Lecours was libelled in an article March 1, 1974, in the Richmond Review. At the time Lecours was a Richmond alderman.

COAL BOOM EYED

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British Columbia mines department task force report predicts that coal development in the province will boom during the next 20 years.

A. L. Peel, deputy minister of economic development and acting deputy minister of mines, said B.C. energy demands and foreign coking coal requirements will push production as high as 100 million tons a year by 1995, 10 times the present level.

Hart Horn, author of the as yet unpublished report, said there are about a dozen metallurgical (coking) coal prospects in the east Kootenay and northeastern B.C. which could be developed.

The major demand for coal will come from the provincial government which will be paying for developments through B.C. Hyrdro for thermal generated electricity.

Displaced Woman Protests Appeal Ban

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Richmond woman who has lost a battle against federal government expropriation of her home says the Supreme Court of Canada should not have dismissed an application to appeal a ruling in favor of expropriation.

Five Richmond families were fighting a federal court of appeal ruling allowing the expropriation of the homes to make way for the expansion of the Vancouver International Airport.

"Murderers or anyone else has the right to appeal, but it seems the little homeowner doesn't," said Marguerite Miller.

About 80 families were given notice of eviction in March 1973 to make way for a new runway, which the Ministry of Transport has not yet decided whether to build.

The federal court of Canada ruled last January that the eviction notices were illegal because the government did not specify how the properties were to be used.

That decision was overturned by the federal appeal court, and the supreme court's refusal Tuesday to hear an appeal against the second decision closes the last route of legal action.

"It makes you feel the little guy isn't worth much," Mrs. Miller said Wednesday. "I guess there's nothing we can do about it now."

With Tuesday's ruling, the federal government now is in the position to take possession of the Millers' property at any time, but Des Allard, an MoT spokesman, said the ministry will try to negotiate with them.

"I don't think anyone's going to go in there with shotguns and a sheriff," said Allard.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Walter Joseph, 34, now serving 18 months in Fort Saskatchewan prison near Edmonton, has been charged with the murder last summer of David Cullen, 36, police said Wednesday. The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Today's deal is a cutie pie. It features a neat bid by the East defender, and a nervy lead by him at trick two, which turned out gorgeously. The hand came up in a rubber-bridge game.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West

2 ◇	2 ♡	3 ◇	Pass
3 ♠	4 ◇	Dbl.	Pass
Pass	4 ♡	Dbl.	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ◇.

When East made a cue-bid in diamonds, he was showing a void in this suit; and, of course, it was a command to West to lead a diamond if South purchased the contract. So, when South arrived at a four-spade contract, West led a diamond, which East ruffed.

The normal play, at tricks two and three, would have been for East to have cashed his two top hearts. Had he done this, declarer would have fulfilled his contract, thanks to the favorable location of the king of trumps.

But East, at trick two, led the deuce of hearts. Declarer never gave even a passing thought to the possibility that East was underleading the five top honors in this suit. South very simply followed suit with the six of hearts.

As is evident, West captured this lead with the eight-spot, and returned another diamond which East ruffed with the king. The ace of hearts now took the setting trick.

Had declarer had the foresight to play the nine of hearts on East's heart lead at trick two, he would have made two overtricks, since his remaining heart would subsequently have been discarded on one of dummy's diamonds. So the difference between playing the six of hearts or the nine of hearts meant a difference of three tricks.

From East's position, his lead of the deuce of hearts was a reasonable gamble. First, as he viewed the dummy, it certainly appeared that the defenders rated to make no tricks in either spades or clubs (either declarer had the club king or West had it. And if the latter were the case, dummy's queen of clubs would win a trick via a successful finesse).

Thus, to defeat the contract required another diamond ruff by East. The question was: who had the nine of hearts? Half the time it would be South, and half the time, West. So East made the 50-50 play of the heart deuce at trick two.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Friday, Dec. 19, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Be positive regarding legal rights, permissions. You can transcend the petty—key is to be true to yourself. Means don't play games with those of little faith—or talent. You are about to make a mark—and this is a day when you realize it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Accent on reconciliation with disgruntled relative. Key is to take new steps, to emphasize originality, independence minus arrogance. Leo, Aquarius could be in picture. Hold off on unnecessary trip.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Follow through on project—teach and learn. Accent on money and how it gets the way it is—impulse buying now can be more costly than usual. Aquarian is in picture. You are presented with unusual choice, proposition. You will know what to do!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Excitement occurs at home base. Cycle is high and status quo is shaken. Diversify. Highlight humor, flexibility. Social event is highlighted. Display sense of humor, willingness to laugh at your own foibles. Gemini, Sagittarius persons are likely to be in picture.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do some revising, reviewing. Relative complains about financial status. Maintain equilibrium. Means don't take others—or yourself—too seriously. Dig beneath surface indications. You could strike pay dirt!

VIRGO (Aug 23-Sept. 22): Be ready for change, variety, travel, intensified relationship. Gemini is in picture—so is another Virgo. Friendship, romance, creative endeavors dominate. Be analytical. Find the reason for recent happening. You'll get at truth!

LIBRA (Sept. 253-Oct. 22): You get chance to prove major contention. Family situation improves. Residence is more harmonious, beautiful. Means recent storm clouds diminish. You could enjoy sunny skies. Taurus, Scorpio are in picture—so is another Libran.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are able to break out of rut. Communication lines are cleared. Cash flow could resume. You see beyond the apparent or obvious. You gain backstage glimpse. Your ESP works overtime. Pisces is in picture.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Build, consolidate, accept responsibility. You are rewarded for past efforts. You perceive what is to occur. Act on knowledge. Pull out of deal that has turned sour. You'll comprehend! Capricorn figures prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Study Sagittarius message. Accent on legal affairs, career, willingness to make intelligent compromise. Means listen to reason. Friend could pave way for valuable professional contact. Aries, Libra might play key roles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You're given chance to express opinions concerning policies, directions, aims and ultimate goals. Another Aquarian—and a Leo—could figure prominently. Accent on employment, basic issues and health resolutions.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Costs, time and motion could command spotlight. Cancer figures prominently. You're asked to produce facts, estimates and past "track records." Your "inner voice serves as reliable guide. Listen to it!

IF DEC. 19 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, independent, an original thinker, considered controversial, direct and, very often, lacking in tact. You gain wider recognition in 1976—and August will be your most significant month. Leo and Aquarius individuals play important roles in your life.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Desmond Henry Taylor, 44, elected to be tried by judge and jury when he appeared in provincial court Wednesday charged with the robbery of a downtown bank Dec. 4.

He was remanded for trial to Jan. 26.

Taylor was arrested Dec. 9 by police acting on description from employees at Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce main branch at Douglas and View, where a person presented a note to a teller and took $2,249. The charge alleges threat of violence was used.

Bradley Edward Gould, 17, formerly of Thunder Bay, was placed on two years probation when sentence was suspended for breaking, entering and theft Nov. 23.

Gould was arrested about 4:10 a.m. carrying two guitars along Broughton Street shortly after throwing a brick through a glass pane at Gleeson Music City, 707 Fort.

Police said he went into the store and took the guitars valued at $920 from a display. Court was told Gould had been living in his car before committing the offence.

A young woman who stole a book and package of gum from The Bay while on conditional discharge from a previous shoplifting offence was fined $250 and put on three months probation.

Judge D. K. McAdam was told Sharon G. Kreutzer, 23, of 66 Moss, had been ordered to write a report on the book stolen earlier. The judge said:

"I think with a person of your education and background there is perhaps something more expected from you."

Murray F. Hildebrandt, 21, of 319 St. Lawrence, was sentenced to 30 days in jail consecutive to a previous sentence for which he was on parole when he stole a car Dec. 1.

He admitted stealing a car belonging to Sharon Thompson, 360 Douglas, and when police stopped it on Dallas Road he was a passenger.

The prosecutor read a lengthy record of offences involving burglary, theft, possession of stolen property and escaping custody.

Counsel Alan Bigelow suggested that since he would be going to jail because of parole violation, the parole board should decide the matter.

The judge said the offences are separate and dissimilar, "except that they demonstrate a propensity toward criminal behavior."

When 72-year-old Gordon May refused to lend Stanley A. Johnson some money, Johnson grabbed the older man's pants and wallet and took off, landing him in court the next morning.

Johnson, 48, of 724 Yates, on other occasions had borrowed from his friend at 1717 Pandora, court was told. Tuesday night he took the matter into his own hands, throwing away the wallet and keeping the $60 it contained.

Eva M. Marlowe, 22, of 860 Currie, pleaded guilty to stealing knitting needles worth $1.98 from Simpson-Sears Dec. 13 and was fined $75.

Two men were fined under fisheries protection regulations involving separate offences.

Garnet Steverson, 5140 Saanich Road, pleaded guilty to using a mechanical pump to harvest clams Aug. 8 in Malksope Inlet, 50 miles from Gold River, without having a commercial licence.

He said he had a permit but it was found later to have expired March 31. Court was told this end of the business was usually his wife's responsibility because the accused could neither read nor write.

Steverson was fined $50.

For Robert D. Randall, of Victoria, a weekend cruise aboard a friend's commercial fishing vessel cost a $10 fine. Randall pleaded guilty to a charge of being aboard without a personal licence Sept. 22.

McAdam was told Randall was found on the troller Madeleine C in Georgia Strait when it was checked by a patrol boat, and said he did not realize a personal licence was required.

LITTLE LOSES

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The state supreme court today rejected Joan Little's appeal of a 1973 breaking and entering and larceny conviction, exhausting all of her avenues of appeal in the state courts.

Miss Little, a black woman who earlier this year was acquitted of killing a white jailer who she said tried to rape her, faces a 7-to-10-year prison term on the breaking and entering and larceny conviction.

Miss Little's attorneys have already said they will take the appeal to the federal courts. The conviction stems from a series of breakins at a trailer park.

Barracks Destroyed

JAKARTA (Reuter) — Fire has destroyed a police barracks including a number of weapons. The barracks housed 176 people.

Ruff Vetoes Prostitutes' Lounge Bid

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The B.C. Human Rights Commission won't help prostitutes who claim they are being discriminated against by a hotel in this north-central B.C. city, the commission director said Wednesday.

About 20 prostitutes have complained to the human rights commission that they were denied service in the lounge of the Prince George Hotel.

Kathleen Ruff, director of the commission, said the prostitutes don't have a case if they are seeking business in the lounge.

Ms. Ruff said that from information her department has gathered on the complaint, made a month ago, "it appears the prostitutes want to use the premises for professional purposes.

"If it's a question of them using the tables (in the lounge) all night for business purposes, then I don't think we can help them," she said.

The B.C. human rights code states that no person should be refused service in any public place because of class, race, religion, color, ancestry or place or origin.

Ms Ruff said the code does not prevent a hotel from refusing service to a person engaged in a commercial pursuit on hotel property.

Porter's Remarks Had Approval

By PAUL WHITELAW
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Contradicting Prime Minister Trudeau, the U.S. state department reiterated Wednesday that American Ambassador William Porter's controversial remarks about Canada-United States relations were made with the department's "knowledge" and "approval."

The state department's insistence that Porter spoke out with Washington's approval in his official capacity as U.S. envoy to Canada was contrary to the prime minister's statement in the Commons.

Trudeau told the House Tuesday that he had been assured by the White House that Porter's comments did not reflect the official policy of the Ford administration.

The prime minister also said he took exception to reports from Washington that the ambassador had received prior approval before telling journalists in Ottawa that Canadian policies were causing resentment in the U.S.

Questioned at a news briefing about the contradiction in the U.S. and Canadian versions of the Porter controversy, state department spokesman John Trattner said he had no comment on Trudeau's remarks.

Trattner's statement that Porter had cleared his remarks with the state department also appeared to be at odds with the comments of a Canadian government official who briefed reporters after a meeting Wednesday in Paris between External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen and the U.S. Secretary of State, Henry Kissinger.

The unnamed Canadian official quoted Kissinger as having told MacEachen during a private 30-minute meeting that he did not authorize Porter's remarks.

Speaking with reporters, the secretary and MacEachen confined their remarks to assurances about the good shape of Canada-U.S. relations.

Kissinger said relations between the two countries are excellent. MacEachen added that relations are in better shape now than in the past.

Privately, however, one state department official in Washington told a reporter Wednesday that "it looks like the Canadians are playing semantics.

"Kissinger may not have personally approved the ambassador's remarks. But you'd better believe that an experienced diplomat like Porter cleared his remarks at a high level in Washington before he spoke."

Porter, who has been nominated by President Ford as ambassador to Saudi Arabia, was in Washington Wednesday being briefed on his new assignment. He will officially leave his Ottawa assignment next week.

Replacing Porter will be Thomas Enders, currently the assistant secretary of state for economic affairs.

Bar Fire Claims Seven

NEW YORK (Reuter) — At least seven persons were killed in mid-Manhattan today by a fire that destroyed a restaurant-bar before it was brought under control, fire officials said.

They said three other persons were injured and firemen were searching for more victims.

A witness said customers in the Blue Angel restaurant tried to retrieve their coats before leaving after the fire broke out.

He estimated that about 35 people were in the club at the time.

The blaze was confined to the first-floor restaurant and basement of a five-storey building, which houses apartments on the top four floors.

Two Days Adrift, Boys Okay

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP) — Two teenage brothers were in good condition in hospital Wednesday after drifting in their 16-foot open boat for more than two days on the storm-tossed waters of Georgia Strait.

Edmond Francis, 18, of Church House, on the southwest coast of B.C., and his brother Ivor, 16, of Heriot Bay on Quadra Island, received treatment Monday for hypothermia (exposure) after they attempted to cross from Heriot Bay to Church House, a distance of 15 miles, Friday night.

Apparently the motor on the boys' boat stalled and they were unable to start it after the starter broke.

GARDENING

Calls are now coming in to know when peach trees should be sprayed for the leaf-curl disease, and how the work should be done.

To be absolutely honest, I must confess I am becoming more doubtful each year as to whether the home gardener can successfully obtain any measure of control over this disease.

We are located on the extreme edge of the peach growing area which means no surety of a good crop every year. The crops we manage to obtain depend entirely on the kind of spring weather we experience.

The local weather at sea level is responsible for the fungus which blisters the leaves. The incidence is low in a cold dry spring, and high when spring is mild and wet, regardless of the trees being sprayed.

The work has to be done early because peach growth buds become active much earlier than growth buds on our other fruits.

Between Christmas and New Year is considered to be the best period in order to avoid bud damage by the sprays that are used.

Unfortunately, the sprays are not effective if used during periods of frost, nor when applied within 48 hours of rain. Since late December weather is either clear and frosty or mild and wet, there is little chance of applyiing the spray with any certainty it will be effective.

Another problem is the spray equipment owned by home gardeners. Our pressure sprayers are only good for about 50 lbs. pressure when continually pumped, and the glass bottles attached to hose pipes are both dangerous and totally unsuited to this kind of work.

The spores which cause the leaf blisters are now safely tucked away under the scales which cover the growth buds, waiting for the emergence of the leaves in spring. To reach them requires a power sprayer giving 225 lbs. pressure to break the spray liquid into minute particles and force those particles beneath the scales.

It is not reasonable to expect any home gardener to invest in this type of equipment, plus the regulation mask and clothing which are necessary when mist sprays are used.

To further complicate matters, all parts of the tree must be covered with full force spray. Since most of our peach trees have been planted against walls, one half of the total surface is inaccessible.

While power equipment may give some measure of control on the exposed side, the spores on the reverse side are left to infect all parts as they are distributed by wind and rain.

Over the years I have tested several peach varieties guaranteed to be immune to the curl disease. All became infected within one to two years, and some so badly defoliated their life ended in five to seven years.

While these trees were undoubtedly immune in the areas where tested, they certainly lost all resistance after a short period in our coastal climate.

The damaging effect of the permissible sprays on painted surfaces is another reason home gardeners hesitate to do a thorough job on trees espaliered to a house wall. Since the peach is the strongest, mechanically, of any of our fruits, it would be easier to handle if always planted in the open.

So, it is up to each home gardener to decide whether it would pay to have his tree sprayed with professional eqipment, or whether to put up with blistered leaves as long as the tree survives.

Personally, I gave up attempting to succeed with peaches, preferring to concentrate on bramble crops which give a good crop every year and leave me free to enjoy Christmas and New Year's without worries about spraying.

Baldaufs Drop Appeal, Plan Guest House Role

Rudolf Baldauf, who runs the Alston Residence, said Wednesday he will instead run the 15-bed home at 228 Edward as a guest home.

Baldauf said he decided to drop the appeal because he learned from a licensing authority that his wife would not be allowed to be co-licensee of the home with him.

In a letter from his lawyer, the Community Care Facilities Licensing Board was told that Baldauf had been severely beaten in January by a resident and was "unable to take as active a role as he had previously."

The letter said Mrs. Baldauf would have shared the responsibility and the work.

It also notes that if they operated the Alston Residence as a guest house the Baldaufs would not have to take on "responsibility and cost for which there had been insufficient compensation."

New Posting For Pepper

Pepper has been appointed public information officer for the Canadian contingent of the United Nations Emergency Force and will be attached to Canadian headquarters in Ismailia.

Girls, 13, Nightclub Strippers

MONTREAL (CP) — Girls as young as 13 were hired by an underworld-controlled agency to work in nightclubs as strippers and go-go dancers, the Quebec police commission inquiry into organized crime was told Wednesday.

A 17-year-old girl, formerly employed by the Paul Calce Agency, told the inquiry the agency was controlled by Claude Dubois who at one stage also encouraged her to "do clients"—become a prostitute.

The witness, who said she was "so disgusted with myself" she couldn't become a prostitute, testified she never earned "less than $350 a week, and often up to $1,500" when she worked as a topless dancer in clubs.

One in three or four girls she met during her employment were aged between 13 and 17 and all were attracted by the money, she said.

The agency, which placed girls in clubs throughout the province, was a cover "for a drug and prostitution ring," she said. "I was lucky to get out with my life."

The witness explained she got "caught up in the drug racket run by the agency people and Dubois" and at one stage Roland Dubois introduced her to speed, showing how to "shoot it up"—taking the amphetamine with a hypodermic needle.

Constable Mario Quevillon of the Montreal police youth aid squad told the inquiry that of 1,500 girls between the ages of 14 and 18 missing in the Montreal area last year, 64 were found working for such agencies, 51 with the Calce agency.

Italy Eyes Ways To Hit Mafia

ROME (AP) — A special parliamentary committee has ended a 13-year investigation of the Mafia with a recommendation that the government attack the Sicilian criminal organization through its pocketbook.

The commission said past action, which included exiling Mafia members from their native Sicily to remote parts of the Italian mainland, was a failure.

To diminish the Mafia's power, the commission recommends that suspected Mafia members be brought to trial on tax evasion charges—the way the U.S. got Al Capone more than 40 years ago—and that the government seize money and other assets of Mafia members upon their conviction for crimes.

It also suggests that parliament set up a permanent watchdog commission to investigate the Mafia and other organized crime groups in Italy.

The findings are contained in the draft report of the 30-member commission which will be presented to parliament in January. Portions of it were made public Wednesday.

The commission said it first looked at the Mafia as a purely Sicilian problem, but concluded its work with the realization that the organization has become a nationwide crime syndicate.

The commission, formed in 1962, issued several previous reports listing the names of top Mafia leaders and blaming official tolerance for the crime organization's continued strength.

ELEPHANT WALK

ROME (UPI) — Commuters got an unexpected sneak preview of the circus that arrived Wednesday.

Twenty-three elephants surprised drivers in downtown Rome as they marched single-file down the Via del Tritone, up the Via del Corso and across the Piazza del Popolo.

"I presume we will have to fine them," a police officer said, "but the question is how much. There is no precedent about elephants since the days of Hannibal."

Riesling wines are made traditionally from grapes that thrive in the cooler areas of the world, particularly in Germany's Rhine Valley where they've been traced back to the days of the Romans.

That's why Calona's Mountain Riesling is made from grapes grown on the cool side of the mountain in the uppermost areas of our Okanagan Valley vineyards.

The stony soil, the cool nights, the high elevation and the gentle sunshine of our valley virtually duplicate the ideal growing conditions of the Rhine Valley.

'Good Politics, Bad Economics'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Congress has passed an energy program that promises lower oil prices until after the election and a new conservation ethic.

Supporters called it a way to avoid future energy crises without hurting the economy. Opponents said it was a shell game — good politics but bad economics.

STADIUM FANS SNUFFED OUT

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — An Oakland County judge has banned smoking at the new $55.7 million domed Pontiac Stadium, home of the Detroit Lions, on health grounds.

"Smoking is like a constant and continuous (assault) to the non-smoker who is obligated to breathe the same air," Circuit court judge William Beer said in a ruling Wednesday.

The ban, he said, will become permanent unless stadium owners can prove at a trial starting Feb. 10 that smoking is not hazardous.

The first test of Beer's order comes Sunday when the Lions close their National Football League season at home against St. Louis Cardinals.

Another big test of the ruling comes at a concert Dec. 31 by Elvis Presley.

"It will take every policeman in Michigan to enforce the rule," a stadium official said. "We can't confiscate cigarettes and cigars at the gates."

U.S. Balance Surplus Up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The broadest measure of the U.S. balance of payments increased more than 50 per cent to a $1.58 billion surplus in the third quarter, the commerce department reported Wednesday.

A spokesman said the large gain from a $1.05 billion surplus in the second quarter probably reflected financial activities of foreign subsidiaries of U.S. corporations, rather than a stronger U.S. payments position.

The balance of payments is a measure of the flow of U.S. dollars and services abroad compared with the flow of foreign money into the United States.

U.S. Lashes UN 'Abominations'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — The UN General Assembly has ended its 30th session with a bitter denunciation by U.S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan, who called the world body a forum for "acts we regard as abominations."

"None will learn with surprise that for the United States, at the very least, the 30th general assembly has been a profound, even alarming disappointment," Moynihan told delegates before the 14-week session adjourned Wednesday night.

Moynihan, whose frequent outspoken criticism of the United Nations has angered other delegates, said, "throughout the world, individuals and governments have observed this general assembly with dismay."

In a reference to the Nov. 10 resolution equating Zionism ith racism, the U.S. ambassador said, "this splendid hall has, since the opening of the assembly, been the scene of acts we regard as abominations."

Moynihan said the 144-nation assembly sought to "pretend that it is a parliament — which it is not.

"It is a conference made up of representatives sent by sovereign governments which have agreed to its recommendations — recommendations which are, however, in no way binding."

Most UN member governments, Moynihan said, do not "govern by consent. At home they seek to rule by decree and it seems wholly natural to seek to emulate the same practice in the general assembly."

The ambassador said that "by one competent count, there are now 28, possibly 29 functioning representative democracies in the world and one (Switzerland) is not a member of the United Nations."

"Let it be clear that we do not entertain any delusions about a grand revival of democracy," Moynihan said.

"What we do hope to see, and hope to encourage, is more societies which will do something to protect civil rights, even if they deny most political rights."

PANAM FILLING IN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pan American World Airways, normally barred from U.S. mainland service, has won temporary permission to carry domestic passengers between San Francisco and New York.

The civil Aeronautics Board approved the route Wednesday to help ease the holiday travel crunch caused by the strike against United Airlines.

It was to begin this morning with flights from New York at 9 a.m. EST and San Francisco at 9:45 a.m. PST.

Pan Am already flies the route, stopping in San Francisco to refuel, as part of its eastbound and westbound round-the-world flights.

The limited domestic service will last through Dc. 23 and will be able to carry about 200 persons a day in each direction.

Nixon Pardon Tied To Ford-Haig Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Post Watergate reporters have linked President Ford's decision to pardon Richard Nixon to appeals made by Nixon chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr., although Ford testified afterwards "nobody made any recommendation to me for the pardon of the former president."

In a story in today's editions of the Post, reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein said Ford's public statement to the house judiciary subcommittee Oct. 17, 1974, was in "apparent contradiction" with events that led up to the pardon, Sept. 8, 1974.

At the committee hearing, Ford had said, "at no time after I became president on Aug. 9, 1974, was the subject of a pardon for Richard M. Nixon raised by the former president or by anyone representing him."

He also assured the committee "nobody made any recommendation to me for the pardon of the former president."

But Woodward and Bernstein, citing reliable sources, reported that on Aug. 28, Ford gave Haig assurances that a pardon would be granted and this had been prompted by recommendations Haig made.

The Post said that in addition, former Nixon speechwriter Raymond K. Price Jr. drafted a statement Aug. 28 for Ford to read, announcing the pardon at his press conference that day and that former Nixon aide, Leonard Garment had drafted a memo urging a pardon and implying, among other things, that Nixon might commit suicide unless relieved of the threat of criminal prosecution.

There was no indication that Ford saw the two drafts, although Ford did not announce the pardon until 10 days later.

However, the Post story said Haig saw Garment's memo and used its arguments in a discussion with Ford Aug. 28 and the Post said Haig acknowledged Wednesday he had discussed the matter with Ford, but declined to disclose details of the conversation.

The Post said Haig told Garment on Aug. 28 that Ford had agreed to a pardon. Later the same day, according to the Post sources, Haig called Garment to say the pardon announcement would be delayed because of legal questions.

1,400 Beds By 1981

$75 Million Hospital Bill Looms

It will cost at least $75 million to complete all plans for modernizing and expanding hospitals in the Capital district over the next five years.

That's the guess from John Clark, regional director of hospital planning, as the Hospital and Health Planning Commission Wednesday night approved a capital budget of almost $23 million for next year alone.

The budget must be cleared by the regional hospital board before going to the new health minister for approval.

But the total far exceeds the commission's authority to borrow, said commissioner Art Young.

It might mean a $50 million referendum for hospital projects within the next year, he suggested.

The provincial government pays 60 per cent of approved building projects with the region's ratepayers financing the balance through long-term loans.

The budget allocates $6.6 million to Victoria General, $5.3 million to Royal Jubilee, $3.5 million to Glengarry where a 150-bed addition will go up and $3.5 million to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital where 75 beds are to be added.

Regional and provincial hospital planners have agreed on a master plan to provide 1,400 modern acute care beds in the Capital district by 1981, a net increase of 84 more than now exist.

Obsolete parts of hospitals now housing 300 beds would be scrapped and nearly 400 new beds added.

The plan, approved by the regional Hospital and Health Planning Commission Wednesday night, would see:

—a new hospital of about 300 beds, at a site yet to be settled.

B.C. Hospital Programs, the provincial agency administering health care, has agreed to recommend these allocations to the health minister so that functional plans can be prepared.

The master program for Victoria's two general hospitals, developed with their participation, confirms proposals in an earlier roles study which called for replacing most of Victoria General with a new hospital because most of it was too obsolete to salvage.

Of the 1,400 regional total, 1,022 would be devoted to medical and surgical acute care, 98 to pediatrics, 74 to obstetrics, 114 to rehabilitation and 92 to psychiatry.

Within the regional total are the 75 beds being added to the Saanich Peninsula Hospital and the 25 beds for acute care at Lady Minto Hospital on Salt Spring Island.

The plan deals only with acute care beds, not extended care beds for long-term care of the chronically ill. Nor does it deal with financing. Cost of a new 300-bed acute care hospital has been estimated at $40 million.

The allocation plan, if approved by the new health minister, still leaves detailed plans to be drawn, tendering and construction, all expected to take at least the five years to the target date.

Bottleneck Of Elderly Hits 135

The Capital district needs at least 344 more hospital beds now for long-term care of mostly elderly patients, regional hospital planner John Clark reported Wednesday night.

The bottleneck caused by this shortage has 135 patients stuck in the $120-a-day beds at Victoria's two general hospitals this week. They only need extended or lesser care but there is nowhere for them to go.

Extended care, if it was available, would cost about $30 a day.

Meanwhile, the general hospitals are jammed, the waiting lists lengthen and elective surgery frequently has to be cancelled.

Clark told a meeting of the regional Hospital and Health Planning Commission that the need for more extended care beds could pass 500 by 1981, even allowing for the 150-bed addition nearing the construction stage at Glengarry Hospital.

There are 389 long-term care beds in the region at nine hospitals. In addition, another 70 beds at Memorial Pavilion, the former Veterans' Hospital, have been recently earmarked for extended care patients.

The commission decided to ask B.C. Hospital Programs, the provincial agency administering health care, to adopt a more realistic ratio in planning future bed needs.

Hospital Programs now calculates a need for 30.3 beds for every 1,000 of population over age 65. The region wants the ratio jumped to 37.4 to meet its experience.

High Income Surtax

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald announced today a 10 per cent surtax will be levied for one year on taxable personal incomes above $30,000, effective Jan. 1.

Macdonald made the announcement in the House of Commons at noon Pacific time, five hours before he was scheduled to outline details of the anti-inflation regulations and government spending cuts.

He said the surtax is being introduced reluctantly as a means of reinforcing the government's attack on inflation.

He said it reflects a concern to show all groups in the economy that the anti-inflation program is fair.

For a taxpayer earning $60,000 it would amount to an additional $998 tax.

Macdonald estimated the measure will apply to about 170,000 taxpayers and yield about $115 million in additional revenue to the federal treasury.

POLLEN YEARS

10-Cent Gas Hike On Way?

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Elimination of the federal oil subsidy as part of federal spending curbs will boost the cost of gasoline 10 cents a gallon, according to the CBC.

The increase, which will push the cost of a gallon of regular gas to the 85-cent price range in Victoria will be effective July 1, the report added.

Other factors in the curbs, to be announced by Prime Minister Trudeau in a 6:30 p.m. TV address, will include a one-year moratorium on cost-of-living indexes on old age pensions and family allowances, as well as freeze on salaries of MPs and senior civil servants, the report claimed.

Among government programs to get the axe in the restraints program will be Information Canada, the Company of Young Canadians, Local Initiatives and Opportunities for Youth programs, according to the CBC.

UNESCO Session Boycott

PARIS (UPI) — Canada and the United States led a 12-nation walkout from a meeting of the UN educational, scientific and cultural organization today to protest a measure equating Zionism with racism.

A spokesman for the Soviet delegation, which joined the Arabs in pushing through the measure, said the meeting of UNESCO experts would go on in spite of the boycott.

The United States, Israel, Australia, Canada, Ireland, Britain, France, West Germany, Denmark, Belgium, Italy and Holland walked out to protest a controversial amendment to a proposed declaration on the world's mass media.

UNESCO delegates voted 36 to 22 Wednesday night for an amendment to "encourage mass media to combat war propaganda, apartheid, and racism."

It referred to a UN resolution describing Zionism as a form of racism. The resolution was referred to in New York Wednesday as an "abomination" by U.S. ambassador to the UN Patrick Moynihan (See Page 2).

Western delegation heads trooped into the conference hall to give Josef Groham of Czechoslavakia, the conference president, letters explaining the walkout.

Grohman started to read the letters but was immediately cut off by objections from Algeria and Iraq.

Letters To Cost 10-11 Cents

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A bill to increase first-class postal rates to 10 or 11 cents from eight-cents probably will be introduced in the Commons next March, Post-master-General Bryce Mackasey indicated Wednesday.

"I hope to get it in by the end of March if I can," he said in an interview.

Mackasey declined to say exactly what the new rate would be but he repeated that he thought "it might be 10 or 11 cents."

"It would still be probably the lowest-cost mail in the world," considering the vast size of Canada. He cited the 20-cent first-class postal rate in West Germany as an example.

Mackasey said he is in no rush to introduce the bill in the Commons but he repeated that rates should increase once the post office has recovered its efficiency after the recent strike.

Vancouver, meanwhile, in the post office has refused to pay $500 advances to some postal workers before Christmas because they haven't worked enough days to qualify for them, Peter Whitaker, president of the Vancouver local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said Wednesday night.

THE LAST WORD was said by B.C. voters Dec. 11 but fali of New Democratic Party appears manifest here as James Harris begins removal of out-going premier Dave Barrett from Vancouver billboard.

NEWS BRIEFS

Economic Picture Not So Bright

OTTAWA (CP) — An expected improvement in the economy is not as strong as it might be, the Conference Board in Canada said today. Despite encouraging signs in many key areas, some persistent problems raise "disturbing questions" about the length and strength of the recovery, the board said.

Poison Gas Leak

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — Twenty Weyerhaeuser Co. workers were sent to hospital Wednesday after they inhaled poisonous chlorine gas that leaked from a ruptured intake line. None of the injured was in critical condition.

Charges Stayed

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Murder charges against three prisoners involved in the June hostage-taking incident at the B.C. penitentiary were stayed Wednesday at the request of the crown because the three — Dwight Lucas, Andy Bruce and Claire Wilson — are already serving life sentences for murder and attempted murder in other cases.

New Go-Between

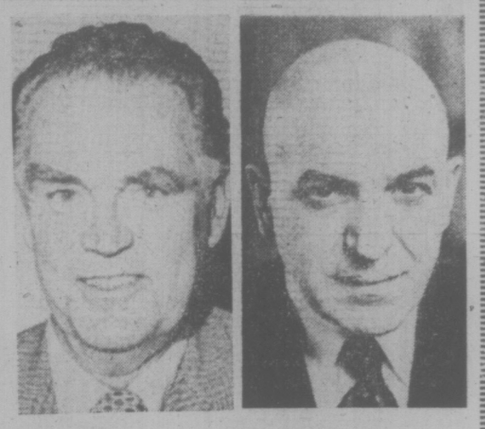
AMSTERDAM (AP) — The Dutch government today called in a prison psychiatrist to talk by telephone with Moluccan gunmen holding hostages in the Indonesian consulate after a Moluccan clergyman Semeul Metiary, indicated he would not continue his own mediation efforts.

Hull Abduction

HULL, Que. (CP) — About 40 area police scoured the Ottawa-Hull region today for the kidnappers of a Hull bank manager's wife who demanded $150,000 ransom for her release.

Truce Threatened

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (UPI) — Heavy gunfire rocked the outskirts of Tripoli today, threatening to demolish a new truce between Moslems and Christians. Leftists seized a ship in the city's harbor and threatened to blow it up but the owners quickly agreed to negotiate the pirates' demands that the Lebanese owners pay their workers overdue salaries.



WHICH ONE is Jack Gregory? ★

HAIR-RAISING IGNORANCE . . .

Chief Jack Gregory is appalled at the lack of general knowledge among applicants to the Victoria police force.

"It's absolutely shocking," he told the Victoria police board meeting Wednesday. "Only 50 per cent knew who the chief constable is!"

"I'm sure they know who Kojak is," countered board chairman, Mayor Peter Pollen.

Gregory said the force recently started a new test on applicants' general knowledge of current affairs.

The force has five vacancies and all applicants must have Grade 12, he said.

Gregory said there are "hundreds of applications on file and it's just unbelievable the number who can just pass the general knowledge test. An applicant who only gets 60 per cent on the test is not the type of man I'm looking for."

Pollen's suggestion that maybe police board members should be given the test went unacknowledged.

ICBC Loss This Year Estimated at $130M

VANCOUVER (CP)— Operating losses for the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia will reach $130 million in 1975, the crown corporation's second year of operation, according to the Province.

The newspaper says a government source said the loss, predicted during the provincial election campaign by MLA-elect Dr. Pat McGeer (SC — Vancouver-Point Grey) was "nearly bang on."

Ernie Hall, provincial secretary and ICBC president under the New Democratic Party government refused to speculate on losses by the Crown agency that runs the province's auto insurance plan.

"From the beginning, I have refused to play the numbers game," Hall said Wednesday. "If you pick every number from one to 150 you're bound to hit the right one."

Hall said routine business was discussed at an ICBC board of directors meeting Wednesday and that he has no idea of the possible deficit picture.

Hall said he would meet with Premier Barrett today and it would be decided then whether to include ICBC in the premier's financial statement.

ICBC lost $34 million in its first year of operation in 1974, a figure which Hall said represented a situation which will require a transfer payment from the government.

Legislation allows the government to transfer up to 10 cents of the 17-cents-a-gallon provincial gasoline tax to ICBC. No transfer has been made.

40 AIDES GET AXE

About 40 political assistants to British Columbia's New Democratic Party cabinet ministers were fired today to clear the way for the incoming Social Credit government.

The appointments of the administrative and executive assistants were rescinded by a cabinet order passed today and the dismissals will be effective Jan. 15

Premier Dave Barrett said in keeping with the British parliamentary system, political appointees should be dismissed when a government is defeated, as the NDP was on Dec. 11.

HELP! TRAPPED IN A CAR WASH

GRESHAM, Ore. (UPI) — The brushes went up and down, for 45 minutes while deputy sheriff Don Wright shivered inside his trapped car at an automatic auto wash.

A motorized track was moving Wright and his vehicle through brushes and spray without incident Wednesday until a freak gust of wind sprung the facility's exit door with a crash on the hood of the car.

"Soap and water was blasting me from all sides. The brushes were going up and down, scrubbing, scrubbing, scrubbing," Wright said. "You just wouldn't believe it."

"Water all around me, couldn't see a thing and it was making the car get pretty cold inside," he said.

He finally used his two-way radio to call for help. A fire district rescue squad brushed away shattered glass and pried away twisted metal from the fallen door to free the deputy.

Gargle Ads All a Lie

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Federal Trade Commission today ordered the makers of Listerine to spend $10 million in advertising to admit they have been lying since 1921 about how the mouthwash will prevent or cure colds and sore throats.

It was the first time the commission has ordered a company to run a corrective advertisement. Previous cases have all involved negotiated settlements where the firms involved agreed to make the "confessions."

"After carefully reviewing the testimony of the experts called by both sides and the studies admitted into evidence . . . we must conclude that the preponderance of the evidence demonstrates that, contrary to advertising claims, the use of Listerine, as directed, will not prevent or cure colds or sore throats or ameliorate cold symptoms," said FTC chairman Lewis Engman in an opinion approved unanimouly by the commission.

The FTC ordered this language to appear in future ads:

"Contrary to prior advertising, Listerine will not prevent colds or sore throats or lessen their severity."

The manufacturer, Warner-Lambert Co. of Morris Plains, N.J., called the order "unfounded" and said it would appeal it to U.S. federal courts, including the supreme court, if need be.

"Listerine advertising is based on the latest scientific evidence relating to colds and does not suggest that Listerine prevents colds," a company spokesman said.

TRUE LOVE'S GIFT CHEAPER

LONDON (Reuter) — The cost of wooing your true love during the 12 days of Christmas is 20 per cent less than last year, says the World Wildlife Fund.

For those who follow the words of the traditional song and send as presents to their lovers a partridge in a pear tree, French hens, colly birds, geese, swans and other live species, the cost would be about $7,860 at today's prices, compared with $9,810 last year.

Parksville Roadblock Nabs 2 City Jailbreakers

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Two more suspected escapers from Wilkinson Road jail were arrested shortly before noon today when they ran into a road blockade set up by RCMP south of Parksville.

A spokesman for the RCMP in Nanaimo said the pair — whose names have not been released—is suspected of robbing a man in Chase River two miles south of downtown Nanaimo earlier this morning and stealing his car. Near to the scene, police recovered a green Torino reported stolen in Saanich overnight Tuesday after 10 inmates broke out of the jail, the largest mass escape in Victoria's history.

The police spokesman said the two men were being taken to Nanaimo for questioning.

In developments Wednesday, three prison guards were suspended and two other escapers were nabbed hiding in a house near Royal Jubilee Hospital.

As of this morning the six inmates still at large were Glen John Glows, 34, John Edward Wonnacott, 28, William Harold Mack, 27, Gerald Paul Ritchie, 23, Peter George McLean, 24, and Lawrence Stanley Shisler.

Police have described the first four named as potentially extremely dangerous and have warned the public to be cautious of strangers and to notify the authorities immediately of any suspicious behaviour.

A Saanich police spokesman said the fugitives are desparate and will likely try to get armed. He said the men are probably still in the Victoria area—lying low and waiting to make their next move.

Hal McGillivray, director of provincial correction for Vancouver Island, said today three guards in the east wing of the jail where the breakout took place were suspended immediately pending an inquiry to be held next Tuesday. He declined to release their names. The disciplinary action is unprecedented in the history of the jail.

Prison guards, who coincidentally met Wednesday night to elect new officers for their union local, have indicated they will not work overtime until the suspended men are reinstated.

McGillivray said an initial investigation into the breakout has revealed there was a power failure in the east wing at about 10:50 p.m. Officials haven't determined the cause but believe it was purposely done to distract the guards' attention while the inmates escaped. He said it took six to eight minutes to restore power and when the lights came back on half the inmates in one section of the wing were missing.

McGillivray said officers discovered two bars in a window nine feet above the floor in the long rectangular inmates' day room had been pried open. Presumably by using a squeegee handle wrapped in a towel which was found in an enclosure outside. He also said a sheet knotted around a bar hung down the outside prison wall but added he didn't think the escaper had used it as the drop to the ground is only about 15 feet.

Once out, the fugitives scaled a 12 foot wire fence

CIA $25M Angola Role Bared

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — Revelation that the CIA has already pumped $25 million into arms aid for two of the warring Angola factions and could have another $7 million squirelled away in defence department appropriations caused a Senate uproar Wednesday.

Following a tumultous closed-door session, senators moved toward a vote on cutting off all forms of combat aid to the strife torn former Portuguese colony. Some of them expressed fears of "another Vietnam."

The body meets again today in another closed-door session to hammer out a solution to the problem.

One suggestion, by a Michigan Republican, that aid be limited to weapons and any sending of U.S. troops be ruled out is believed unacceptable to the Democratic majority.

State Secretary Henry Kissinger, arriving home Wednesday night from meetings in Paris found himself at the centre of the controversy.

He insisted at an airport briefing that six key Congressional committees had been kept posted of U.S. involvement in the African nation and had given the arms aid tacit approval.

Meanwhile, it was reported in South Africa that military rebels had staged an abortive uprising against Mozambique's Marxist government early today.

Loyal forces put down the revolt in street fighting in the capital of Lourenco Marques, Radio South Africa reported.

Scattered fighting raged in the streets of that other former Portuguese colony, well into daylight, the reports said.

South African newspapers have reported growing unrest among the 10 million population since President Samora Machel began a wholesale nationalization of industry and formation of collective farms six months ago when the Portuguese turned over the reins of government to him.

topped with three single-strand barbed wires, he said. They apparently used their coats to protect them from the barbs. They then fled the prison grounds.

Two suspected escapers, Donald William Thomson, 42, and Kenneth Graham Moorhouse, 28, were arrested two hours later at the rear of Spectrum School. They appeared in provincial court Wednesday afternoon charged with escape.

Thomson pleaded guilty and was remanded to Christmas eve for sentencing. Moorhouse requested a week to obtain counsel and was remanded to the same date for election of trial method and plea.

At about 3:50 p.m. Wednesday, Victoria police received a tip that two of the wanted men were hiding in an upstairs suite in a duplex at 1725 Bank.

Staff Sgt. Gordon Bennett said seven officers responded and ringed the house. The two men apparently got wind of what was happening, he added. One went to a window and was about to open it to climb onto the roof when a police officer, gun drawn, suddenly appeared on the outside.

The two submitted without struggle.

William Paul Murray, 27, and Larry Alan Preston, 32, appeared in provincial court this morning, both charged with escape. Murray was remanded to Dec. 24 and Preston to Dec. 23. No pleas were entered.

Bennett said a 23-year-old man who resides at the Bank street duplex and a 26-year-old man living a couple of blocks away on Oak Bay were issued appearance notices on charges of aiding and abetting the fugitives. They will appear in court later in the week or Monday.

Stadium Novelty Blamed for Jump

QUEBEC (CP) — "Architectural novelty" in the design of the main Montreal Olympics stadium caused a $189 million cost increase between June and November this year, says a report prepared by a group of consultants.

Tabled in the national assembly Wednesday, the report also blamed recurring technical adjustments and poor labor relations for the cost increase.

The report by Lalonde, Valois, Lamarre, Valois and Associates Inc. confirmed cost of the 72,000-seat stadium and swimming pools now is estimated at $564 million.

Designed by Paris architect Roger Taillibert, the stadium now is expected to cost 2½ times more than the $223 million estimate presented by Montreal officials three years ago.

Figures tabled in the national assembly last month, when the Quebec government took over construction management from the City of Montreal, show the Games' cost now is estimated at $1.034 billion.

Original estimate of the Games' cost was $310 million.

'Delinquent' Parents Facing Ont. Charges

TORONTO (CP) — John Smith, Ontario minister of correctional services, said Wednesday the province no longer can accept parents' abdication of responsibility for their children and that he will urge prosecution of negligent parents.

Teenagers should also be required to carry identification cards with photographs, he said.

Parents may be prosecuted for contributing to the delinquency of their children by abdication of their parental function which "surely includes knowing where their children are and who they are with," Smith in a speech to a group of volunteers involved in correctional work.

He said the province "can no longer afford to indulge the whims nor tolerate the excesses of indulgent and affluent youth."

HOVERCRAFT ROLE GROWS

LONDON (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union are both developing giant hovercraft for military purposes, Jane's Surface Skimmers said in its 1976 edition today.

The U.S. navy is developing ocean-going hovercraft of up to 10,000 tons, Jane's said. The Soviet Union is also developing military hovercraft "substantially larger" than the 200-ton vessels currently in operation, it reported.

A hovercraft, which rides above the water on a cushion of air, has the advantage of being speedier than conventional ships.

Jane's said naval planners were turning to the hovercraft, also known as a surface effect ship, "to regain the edge in speed that has gone to the submarine with the advent of nuclear power."

Test exercises show the hovercraft can play an important role in anti-submarine warfare, especially when used in conjunction with helicopters to protect convoys from underwater attack, the authoritative military reference said.

Anti-submarine helicopters using hovercraft as a base for operations had between 20 and 40 per cent greater range than helicopters based on conventional warships, Jane's said.

How You Write On To the Age of 102

Hands up, now, those of you who remember our notes here not too long ago on having lunch at the Union Club and observing the businessman's mind in its native lair? Just as I thought. A very poor attention-span there in the back of the room. Always remember that you may be asked questions at any time.

Well, anyway, much to my surprise, having had some sport with mine hosts after a luncheon there, I was invited back with a hearty show of good fellowship all around. It is now evident to me that businessmen are very good at taking absolutely any joke that doesn't cost them money.

Writers are notoriously unkind to businessmen, probably as a defensive mechanism to justify the inefficiency and disorganization of their haphazard methods (Sinclair Lewis, for example, created Babbitt as the most enduring, most hateful prototype, but Lewis couldn't add up a dinner cheque and often forgot to put on his socks in the morning.)

It is also true that businessmen have little or no concept of how writers operate and this, as we shall see, became abundantly clear at the Union Club.

Once again I was the guest of R.J., Top Management, and present, as well, were The Advertising Man and The Banker. This time, however, we were joined by the man I will refer to simply as The Efficiency Expert, a chap with such a knowing, piercing gaze that I was jolly glad mother had sewn my shin plasters to my mittens.

We had hardly been introduced, joked with the motherly waitress and ordered our fillet of sole before the Efficiency Expert turned to me with a shark-like smile and remarked, "So you're the columnist, eh? Boy! You fellows certainly have a sweet life!"

Normally my reaction to this would simply be to strike viciously at the man with my gold-headed walking stick, but I had left it in the vestibule, and, besides, it seemed a good chance to explore once more the executive mind at work.

I favored the Efficiency Expert with a profile view of the tic that pulsed under my left eye, nervously brushed the imaginary lint from my lapels and bade him continue. "Continue," I said, dimpling.

"Three little columns per week," the Efficiency Expert said, wonderingly. "Why, I dictate more than that every day before lunch."

I murmured something about the demands of a more-or-less fresh idea each day, the rope on which to string the wooden beads, and mentioned the perils of snow blindness which afflicts so many columnists facing the unsoiled waste of copy-paper on those days when the idea isn't there. It was mixing metaphors, but I didn't care.

The Efficiency Expert drew a genuine silver pencil from his breast-pocket anl began to mark figures on the tablecloth, a thing I had seen before only in movies.

"How far are you ahead with your columns?" he asked.

"Sometimes I am an entire day ahead," I said, defensively, like a man trying to establish a credit rating, "and as recently as 1965 I was two entire columns ahead."

"Just as I thought," the Expert cried. "You aren't going at it in a business-like way. Now"—he began to write rapidly on the tablecloth with his genuine silver pencil — "our yearly average for columns, allowing for the customary three-week vacation, would be 147 columns, right?"

"If you say so," I said, "but it's an exhausting thought."

"Let us say, now, that you were to write two columns each and every day for a year, right? That would mean that you would do 730 columns in a year which would give you a surplus of 583 columns. In 10 years you would have accumulated a stock-pile of 5,830 columns — or nearly 39 years of columns ahead!"

"Good God!" I said.

"How old are you?" the Expert asked.

I told him. He scratched some more figures on the tablecloth.

"Right! On this recommended schedule when you reach the age of 65 you will have enough columns written to keep appearing in the paper until you are 102 years of age — without writing another line!"

"There is no reason in the world why you shouldn't produce two a day, but if you could write three a day—or 1,095 columns per year — then, at the age of 60 you would be able to retire, but still have your columns appearing for the next 40 years!"

"It boggles the imagination," I said.

"How long's it take you to write a column?" The Efficiency Expert asked, caught up in the miracle he was creating.

"Well," I said, "not counting the incubation of the idea, it generally takes six to eight hours. Most of this time is spent watching the construction of the building next door, walking back and forth to the soft-drink machine and eating Eberhard Faber Ebony pencils."

"All that would go if you applied business principles to your operation," he said. "Waste motion, as our time studies show, is the root of inefficient production. You must program yourself to a planned output — let's say 500 words per hour. The man with the definite objective is the man who gets the job done."

"I know a writer who only wrote one word in three days," I said, in my defence," and that was the word 'the'. You should come by and watch Arthur Mayse sometime. There are days when it takes Arthur an hour and a half to roll the paper in his machine. This is the way we all are."

"All pretence," snapped the Efficiency Expert. "Any businessman could organize your kind of writing just as he organized an accounting office. I wouldn't be at all surprised, in fact, if the whole operation couldn't be computerized."

Well, I'd have killed him right there, but, of course, there are certain things you just don't do in the Union Club.

Teachers' Arbitration Opens Here

An arbitration hearing into the salary dispute for Lower Vancouver Island zone teachers began today under direction of arbitration board chairman and Vancouver lawyer Kenneth Brawner.

The three-man board, which also includes Victoria lawyer Noel Pagent, representing trustees, and J. A. Sprague representing teachers, must hand down its award by Dec. 31.

Two days were scheduled for the hearings at the Media Centre, behind Greater Victoria School Board administrative offices.

If the dispute is not solved by Dec. 31, the board chairman has until Jan. 5 to decide on an agreement retroactive to Jan. 1, under provincial legislation. The retroactive provision was designed for this year only.

Santa's Helpers Behind Bars

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The Toyota pickup laden with goods wheeled into the federal medium security prison at William Head.

Stopping at the gate, guards pawed through the cargo, taking some items and placing them aside. Then they waved the truck into the prison grounds where willing hands carried what was left of the load into a make-shift repair shop. There the inmates set to work.

Once again the prison's toy program was under way.

For four years now the inmates, through the auspices of the John Howard Society of Vancouver Island, have received used and broken toys from Victoria merchants and citizens.

In repairing the discarded dolls, games and toys, the prisoners have relied more on imagination than the scant materials they're able to scrounge from the prison shops.

But each year it's been a success, and this one is shaping up the same way.

Right now the men are putting the finishing touches to their handiwork for the big moment Saturday when 48 children of inmates arrive to meet Santa . . . and his bag-full of gifts.

Mike Bennett, head of social development at William Head, said much of the credit for the program goes to a 62-year-old inmate named Frank, a habitual criminal serving an indefinite sentence.

Fresh Start For Those Broken Toys

Frank's been the organizer, the prime mover since its inception.

Willie Blonde, co-ordinator for the Island's John Howard society, said the toy program gives the inmates a rare treat — a chance to do something for their own families.

June Young, secretary of the Victoria area council of the society, described the public response to the program, despite a low-key pitch, as nothing short of remarkable.

This year the society placed toy barrells in the Hillside and Mayfair shopping malls. Sears and Eaton's gave the group a number of rejects and several people from Vic West to Uplands phoned to say they had toys to give if someone would pick them up.

The toys ranged from stuffed dolls to hockey games, four bikes and even a pogo stick. Some didn't make it past the front gate. Guards "censored" a set of walkie-talkies, some plastic knives and toy guns.

Those toys not used by the inmates are returned to the society for distribution to needy families.

But for the prisoners themselves, the toy program allows a fleeting departure from the, tedious routine of jail life.

And as one inmate wrote in a letter of thanks to the John Howard workers, "it's a pleasure to exercise some unselfishness."

Saanich to Seek Provincial Aid On Escape Cost

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Saanich council is tired of picking up the tab for overtime police work caused by Wilkinson Road jail breaks and will pressure the provincial government for compensation.

Ald. Fred Severson said today he had been deluged with complaints from ratepayers after Tuesday's escape of 10 prisoners.

"They want to know what the hell Sannich is doing about it," he said. "They want to know what kind of overtime hours our men are logging at the expense of the ratepayers."

After a meeting of the Saanich police commission today, Mayor Ed Lum said the council will contact the attorney-general's department demanding action.

He agreed with Severson that Saanich taxpayers shouldn't pay the price when there is "laxity in the (provincial prison) system itself."

Lum was highly critical of the Wilkinson Road administration, stating the window that the 10 men had used to escape Dec. 16 was the same one used by Danny Cain in his escape last July.

"Those same bars were not put back in the proper manner," Lum said, adding Saanich was not informed of the break until more than an hour after it happened.

"We were able to get nine cars on the road," he said, "But it didn't accomplish very much because by that time they could be far away."

Lum warned residents to be extra careful until the six escapees still at large are recaptured.

"It's impossible to say what these desperate men will do. I want to warn residents to lock their doors at all times," Lum said, "Before they open their doors they should make sure they know who is (at the door). They've seen pictures of the men in the papers. If they see anybody suspicious they should phone the police immediately."

37% Increase In Provisional Region Budget

The Capital Regional Board Wednesday approved a provisional operating budget of $10.6 million for next year, a jump of 37 per cent over spending this year if it was to go untrimmed.

But directors were assured by board chairman Jim Campbell there will be ample opportunity for a thorough overhaul before the final budget goes to the provincial government for approval at the end of March.

The estimates are close to 10 times the region's budget five years ago but the board has taken on a score of new jobs since then.

Among them is community health services, the biggest single item in the estimates at $3.1 million, up from $2.6 million this year. The provincial government contributes 70 per cent of this.

Since 1970 the region has also consolidated debt repayment for individual municipalities. Loan repayments under long-term financing of a variety of projects is forecast at $2.7 million in 1976, an increase of about $800,000.

Among other services added to the regional role are solid waste disposal, recycling of some waste, purchase of parks, a budget for land-banking and housing, operating of recreation programs and construction of most of the Juan de Fuca recreation complex and an arena at Sooke, take-over of the Royal Theatre, and major expansion in building inspection and sewer construction.

The regional board will have a surplus of almost $700,000 from this year to help offset rising costs and growing programs. The surplus stems largely from a three-month strike-lockout of civic employees earlier this year.

Among regional budget estimates for 1976:

$832,000 for the Juan de Fuca recreation centre, an increase of almost $300,000.

$406,000 for garbage disposal in contrast to $161,000 this year.

$506,000 for trunk sewers and sewage disposal. This year's budget was $265,000.

$710,000 for planning, up from $480,000 this year.

Man Paid $170 for Pound Of Marijuana, Court Told

A man arrested for possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking said one pound cost him $170, county court was told Wednesday.

Const. David Thornley of Victoria police said the accused, William Edward Harland, 23, of 1155 Mason, was carrying a brown paper bag Dec. 20, 1974, when he approached a house at 1024C Pandora where police had just conducted a drug raid.

Thornley said Harland told him the cost of the marijuana when questioned inside the house.

"Did you bag it up yourself?" Thornley said he asked Harland.

The accused asked him what he meant.

"Did you place the marijuana in the bags?" the constable asked.

Harland replied he didn't think he wanted to answer.

Thornley said there was a plastic bag inside the brown paper bag and there were 20 small bags containing a substance inside that plastic bag.

Four bags were sent for analysis to the federal laboratory in Vancouver, he said.

Cross-examined by defence counsel Doug Christie, Thornley agreed the analyst's report on marijuana was on only one of the four bags. Thornley agreed he personally did not conduct any tests on any of the bags.

Selection of a jury was delayed for half an hour when no court reporter appeared.

Judge Stewart apologized to the jury panel, saying "something has gone wrong with the administration today . . . it's disgraceful and inexcusable." He said the absence of a court reporter was not the responsibility of the reporter who eventually came.

Construction Bounces Back

Housing starts totalled 299 in the Greater Victoria area during November to bring the 11-month total to 3,290, up 29.2 per cent from 1974.

The increase represents a remarkable rebound after the municipal strike-lockout which hampered construction early in 1975.

A construction surge which began in July has carried through strongly month by month with the result that all totals are ahead of 1974 across the board.

Starts for apartment units for the first 11 months totalled 1,641, up from 1,228 in 1974. Starts of single family homes totalled 1,280, up from 1,209.

In November the 299 starts consisted of 94 single family homes, 199 apartment units and six duplex units. The previous November the totals had been 90 single family homes, 50 apartment units and two duplex units.

The supply of new homes and apartment units is fairly tight but there is a surplus of condominium units.

There are 71 newly-completed apartment units yet to be rented and 209 new condominium units on the market for sale. The apartment units are mainly in two developments on Esquimalt Road and on Admirals Road in Esquimalt.

Most of the condominium units are in Victoria. There are 133 new condominium units for sale in Victoria City, 41 in Esquimalt and 35 in Saanich.

Meanwhile, the supply of surplus new single family homes is diminishing. At the end of November there were only 34 on the market, down from 112 at the same time last year. Of the 34, only 10 are under $60,000. Most of these houses are in Saanich.

In May the starts had totalled only 160, down from 441 and in June 203, down from 317.

In July they rose to 541, up from 168 and in August were 280, up from 217. The surge continued through autumn with September starts totaling 361, up from 153, and October starts soaring to 663, up from 221.

Completions during the first 11 months totalled 2,477, down from 3,861 in 1974. The high total in 1974 was the result of an earlier construction boom in 1973. The high rate of starts this year will push 1976 completions much higher than 1975 levels.

Byelection On Feb. 28

Feb. 23, 1976, has been set as the date for a Victoria civic byelection to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of MLA-elect Sam Bawlf from city council.

City clerk Morran Waller said today the deadline for receipt of nominations will be three weeks before the byelection, Monday Feb. 9. A revised voters' list will be posted Jan. 5.

Thetis Lake Park Protected Forever

No subdivisions, shopping centres or marinas will ever despoil the beauty and tranquillity of Thetis Lake Park.

A bylaw passed almost unnoticed by city council last week, amid the excitement of the provincial election, virtually guarantees protection of the park in perpetuity by reserving all the watershed lands north of the Trans-Canada Highway "for park purposes for the pleasure, recreation and enjoyment of the public."

"This is probably the best thing that has ever happened to our city parks system," parks administrator Cliff Bate commented today.

BATE
. . . "best thing"

To remove the designation would require not only a two-thirds majority vote of all council members but also the approval of the lieutenant-governor-in-council (the provincial cabinet), who could also order any such proposal to be put to a referendum.

Last week's final approval of the bylaw ends years of arguing and indecision by city council on the future of Thetis Lake Park, which at one time the city wanted to hand over to the Capital Regional District.
